

GOMPERS IS PRESIDENT AGAIN

Keefe Only Official of Federation of Labor Not Re-elected By the Denver Convention. PROPAGANDA IS TO BE CARRIED ABROAD

Resolutions Ask President Roosevelt for the Pardon of Jan Pouden, the Russian Revolutionist in New York.

DENVER, Nov. 21.—President Samuel Gompers of Washington, D. C., first vice president—James Duncan, Quincy, Mass., second vice president—John Mitchell, Springfield, Ill., third vice president—James O'Connell, Washington, D. C., fourth vice president—Max Morris, Denver, Colo., fifth vice president—D. A. Hayes, Philadelphia.

Sixth vice president—William D. Huber, Indianapolis. Seventh vice president—Joseph F. Valentine, Cincinnati. Eighth vice president—John R. Alphonse, Boston.

Fraternal delegates—To the British Trades Congress: John R. Alphonse, editor of the Modern Worker, and B. A. Langer, of the United Garment Workers of America.

To Canadian Trades Congress: Jerome Jones of the Georgia Federation of Labor, editor of the Journal of Labor.

The above is the result of today's election in the American Federation of Labor convention. The executive council, which is made up of the officers, shows no change from the previous year, with the exception of John R. Alphonse, who was elected in place of Daniel J. Keefe, who withdrew.

Gompers was re-elected to the office he has held since the organization of the federation in 1881, with the exception of one year, amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm, only one representative of the Socialist party voting against him.

Building Trades Rebuked. Building trades disputes were the first matters taken up in the convention today. The committee on building trades, to which all the resolutions relating to this subject were referred, reported and in each case recommended that these disputes be referred to the convention of the National Building Trades Council, which is affiliated with the federation.

This convention will be held in Denver next week. A resolution was agreed to instructing the secretary of the convention to write to the officers of the Modern Woodmen asking them to employ union men instead of non-union men in the construction of their home at Colorado Springs.

At the close of the report of the committee on building trades, Vice President James Duncan moved that inasmuch as the charter issued to the Building Trades Council gave it no jurisdiction to issue state charters the council be instructed to live up to its charter. This was carried after considerable discussion by a vote of 91 to 41.

Keefe Steps Down. Keefe of the Longshorem arose to announce the withdrawal of his candidacy for re-election to the executive council, giving his reasons for this action.

Keefe stated he had within the last twenty-four hours announced his intention not to be a member of the executive council owing to the reconvening of the committee of the president's report. He said he had voted the Republican ticket for thirty-five years and would continue to do so until his conscience dictated otherwise.

"The relations between President Gompers, the executive council and myself," he said, "are as amicable as ever. We agreed to the economic movement and will work together to advance the movement to the president of the executive council or any organization in this convention, my services will be forthcoming."

Gompers is Re-elected. At 10:45, James M. Lynch of the Typographical Union was called to the chair and the nominations for president called for. President Gompers was placed in nomination to succeed himself by Delegate John P. Fry of the Moulders' Union.

Gompers was re-elected with only one dissenting vote, that of a Socialist, representing the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, and a Socialist, insisting that his vote should be registered against Mr. Gompers.

President Gompers thanked the convention in a brief speech, saying in part: "Our movement is reflected by the average intelligence of our fellows. We must take the consequences of the actions of the more uninformed of our fellows. We must take what comes from the best and the worst, making common cause for all. We must cement the bonds of fraternity, unity and fellowship among the workers, not only of the American continent, but of the entire world."

"In the coming year I shall endeavor to do all I can for the labor movement. By your vote you have directed me to go to other countries. I shall endeavor to carry out your instructions in this respect, but I am not quite sure the courts will permit me. In conclusion, I wish to say I am deeply grateful for the vote of confidence. In the labor movement I live and I will live to serve it."

PAPER TRUST IS SHARPLY ATTACKED

Severe Arrangement of Present Tariff Before the Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A severe arraignment of the so-called "paper trust" was the feature of today's tariff hearing before the house committee on ways and means, which was in session until nearly midnight. After hearing arguments mainly for a protective tariff, the committee listened to the testimony of John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Norris argued for free trade in pulp and print paper, giving many figures to show that the protection afforded the paper manufacturers by the present tariff resulted in unreasonable prices.

Representatives of the Typographical Union, Engravers, Pressmen and Stereotypers and Electrotypers' unions supported Norris' contention with the additional argument that the increased cost of paper reduced the size of the newspapers and gave less work and lower wages.

The paper manufacturers occupied the rest of the time and were sharply questioned by Democratic members of the committee. Arthur H. Hastings of New York, president of the American Paper and Pulp association, admitted that dividends as high as 14 per cent had been paid by the paper companies in 1907, of which he is the head, in addition to which the company had earned in twenty years $400,000 on a capital of $100,000.

DETECTIVE WILL SURVIVE WOUNDS

Narrow Escape of Officer Who Was Shot by Ex-Convict at San Jose, a Few Days Ago.

SAN JOSE, Nov. 21.—Detective Ray W. Starbird, who was shot twice yesterday afternoon by George Ballard, ex-convict and morphine fiend, will recover. His escape from death is deemed a narrow one by the physicians, who this morning located the bullets. One bullet entered the left side just below the heart, and it was traced around the left side to the backbone. The other entered just below the navel and sped around the right side, also ending at the backbone. Neither bullet pierced the abdominal cavity, nor the backbone itself, and the wounds are apparently superficial.

Although the positions of the bullets have been located, an X-ray will be put in this afternoon or tomorrow, after Starbird more fully recovers from the shock of the shooting. No inquest will be held on Ballard who hanged himself in his cell in the city prison soon after his arrest following the shooting, until Starbird is able to appear in court. Ballard's parents were old and respected residents of the Willows, this city, but for several years past he had been a petty thief and criminal, under frequent sentences for his offenses.

WRECKAGE OF AMERICAN VESSEL OFF CARMANAH

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 21.—Wreckage was washed ashore today (two and a half miles west of Carmanah Point, indicating the loss of some vessel, seemingly an American, during the night of yesterday. Light-house keeper Daykin of Carmanah Point stated that a piece of a ship's rail of oak about five feet long, eight inches wide and four inches thick, a shield of pine with the U. S. coat of arms on it, a piece of red, white and blue enamel, a green painted plank hull bit, broken up, with "J. D. C." alone remaining and a few coconuts were found among the wreckage.

Nothing can be learned here (tentative) as to the vessel. Shipping men state that the only vessel on the registers whose name has the initials "J. D. C." is a schooner which is now in Atlantic. Light-house keeper Daykin says that he saw no vessels in distress, nor did he hear of any.

It is noted that a schooner was off there yesterday sailing inward and there was a schooner I called for a time off Carmanah today, but she got a breeze and sailed away.

ASKS FOR PERMISSION TO RECEIVE A REBATE

Curious Request Made to Interstate Commerce Commission by a Los Angeles Company.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A curious request made to the Interstate Commerce Commission in a petition filed by the National Lumber company of Los Angeles against the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad company. The complainant asks that the past, present and future rates on ship-lumber and building material from Los Angeles to various points on the yarding in transit be reduced to enable it to meet the competition with companies having their yards at San Pedro.

The defendant railway is willing to grant the rebate, but holds that it cannot do so under the law. The commission is requested to direct the railway company to pay the rebate on certain shipments, amounting to $771. No such report ever before was made to the commission.

TWO FISHERS LOST WHEN A WHARF FALLS IN

PLAYA DEL REY, Cal., Nov. 21.—Heavy seas at 1 o'clock this afternoon washed away forty feet at the outer end of the wharf of the Pacific Land company here, carrying down two men who were fishing at the time. Both were rescued in a skiff by Lewis Manilla, a 15-year-old boy. There were many other persons on the pier at the time, but no others were washed into the ocean.

Surrendered Himself as Embassador. OAKLAND, Nov. 21.—Howard C. Wentworth, a young man who arrived recently from the East, surrendered himself to the police here today, stating that while in the employ of Wentworth & Van Winkle, real estate dealers of New York City, he embezzled between $500 and $600 of the firm's money and left for the West. Captain of Detectives Peterson will communicate with the New York authorities concerning the case.

MILLER & LUX MAY SELL HOLDINGS

Repeated Stories of Prospective Sale of Vast California Ranches to Eastern Men.

HENRY MILLER FLATLY DENIES THE RUMORS

Sale Will Involve About Half a Million Acres of Land and Butcher Business of State. Worth About $20,000,000.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 21.—A special to the Mercury from Gilroy tonight states that Henry Miller, of the firm of Miller & Lux, who was seen at his home in Gilroy last night, positively denied the report that the firm of Miller & Lux have disposed of, or are to dispose of, their holdings on the Pacific coast or any part of them.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—Negotiations are pending between Rutledge & Kilpatrick of this city and a syndicate of Eastern financial men for the acquisition of the entire land and stock holdings of the firm of Miller & Lux of San Francisco.

The St. Louis firm has an option on the property. The deal involves an expenditure of more than $20,000,000 and will result in the passing of the greater portion of the better business of the Pacific slope into the hands of the Eastern men, whom it is asserted are affiliated with the meat trust.

The land holdings include more than 400,000 acres in the heart of the San Joaquin valley and will mean the transfer of the finest stock ranches around Merced, Fresno, Visalia and Bakersfield, as well as more than 30,000 acres of land where oil is flowing in abundance.

It was definitely ascertained yesterday that the negotiations will not be included that the prospective purchasers had gone so far as to place $1,000,000 in escrow pending the arrangement of details.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—The extensive holdings of the firm of Miller & Lux in California and Oregon are reported to have been disposed of for a sum placed at $20,000,000, of which $4,000,000 is said to have been paid down. The properties have been purchased by wealthy German-Americans, headed by Liggett & Meyers, former wholesale tobacco dealers in St. Louis. Adolphus Busch, the brewer, is said to be interested in the extent of $1,000,000. The lands said to include 50,000 acres in California, of which 20,000 are oil lands, and 250,000 acres in Oregon. There are 120,000 head of cattle and 20,000 horses. The deal includes a virtual monopoly of the butcher business of San Francisco, which it will possess to some extent in California.

The lands are to be sold as rapidly as possible, it is asserted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—It is definitely known that the firm of Miller & Lux for its entire holdings on the Pacific coast. It is not yet known whether or not the deal has been closed.

KAISER DISPLAYS A NEW DOCILITY

At Berlin Celebration Reads His Speech, Which Had First Been Approved By Chancellor

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Emperor William made his first appearance in public today since his interview with Chancellor von Buelow last Tuesday, when the prince urged upon his majesty the necessity of speaking and acting only on the advice of his responsible ministers, and he gave a striking example of his readiness to observe the obligation then laid upon him.

The occasion was the centennial celebration of the city council. When the emperor arose to ascend the tribune, Prince von Buelow stepped forward and impressively handed him a printed sheet and the emperor, ignoring his general opinion of speaking extemporaneously, confined his remarks to what was on this paper.

After a few formal expressions his majesty made the following references to recent occurrences: "I cherish a firm confidence that the bond of loyalty and affection which, from ancient times in our fatherland, has so closely joined the king and citizen, the prince and the people, always will remain unbroken."

"According to the words of the Prussian national hymn, 'The sun cannot always shine and dull days must occur,' then the rising clouds would never throw their shadow between me and my people."

The Nord Deutscher Zeitung, referring to the emperor's declaration to Prince von Buelow on the occasion of the interview of this week, says the German press has almost unanimously expressed sincere satisfaction therewith. An overwhelming majority of the German nation feels deeply thankful for the emperor's high minded resolve in the matter of his imperial duties, as set forth in the Reichsbeschluss.

"The nation possesses," the paper continues, "a guarantee of the continuance of that confidence between the crown and the people which in the past has given rise to such splendid achievements. His majesty's resolve appears the more high minded because it was taken in spite of the undeniable exaggerations of the public opinion, which the emperor must have felt was unjustified."

AUTOIST IS KILLED IN REMARKABLE ACCIDENT

Machine Dodges a Dog, Then Strikes Two Trees and a Telegraph Pole.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—Turning sharply to avoid collision with a large dog that was crossing the course Jean Juhase, the French-Spanish car entered in the international light car race, to be run here next Wednesday as a preliminary to the grand prize contest on Thursday, hurled his machine to an almost instant death today and is himself lying in the Savannah hospital tonight with an injured spine. The racing machine was crippled beyond hope of repair. The scene of today's fatality was on White Bluff road, a straight and level stretch. The turn made to avoid the dog was slight, but the speed of the little car caused it to jump sideways and it struck a tree, a glancing blow. There was a ricochet to a second tree and then to a telephone pole. Still plunging about after this third blow the automobile turned completely around and again ran into the pole, which this time was broken off short. In the midst of the plunging both Juhase and Juhase lost their seats, the mechanic being the first to go.

HE DID PENANCE FOR FIFTY YEARS

Strange Suit Against Estate of Man Who Attacked Girl Long Ago, for $20,000.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—A suit filed today in the United States circuit court by Mrs. Melissa Z. Funk of Atchison, Indiana, to collect $20,000 worth of notes from the $200,000 estate of Theodore P. Bunnell, late founder of Grand Junction, Colorado, and capitalist of Santa Monica, California, reveals one of the most remarkable stories ever recorded in the annals of the Western courts. By means of letters and promissory notes alleged to have been signed by Bunnell, which were filed today in court, it is shown that Bunnell when a young man in Indiana fifty years ago, made an assault and attempt, instigated by Mrs. Funk, who was then Miss Melissa Zink, a lass of 13 years, and failing in which he was stricken with a remorse which first forced him to leave the country and throughout the remainder of his life compelled him to do penance for his crime. During the ensuing years he wrote many letters to Miss Zink begging forgiveness, and sent her many promissory notes, payable from his estate as a palliation for the injury he had done her. These notes are made up in number and form and showing a striking coincidence from which the writer suffered.

Bunnell, who has been a resident of Santa Monica, a seaside resort of Los Angeles for many years, died at the age of 63, a year ago in Colorado Springs, his body at that time remaining unclaimed in the Colorado city for some days. He left no heirs, his wife having died two years previous to his own demise. His body was finally returned here and interred in Woodlawn cemetery. George H. Batten of California, and William A. Marsh of Colorado Springs are the executors of the estate, which is located in California and in Colorado Springs and Grand Junction. The executors have refused to release the claim of Mrs. Funk and the suit filed today is the result.

The first note is dated April 26th, 1860, and with its accompanying statement reveals the very heart of the whole story. It appears in this form:

"Rob Roy, Ind., April 26th, 1860. 'I promise to pay Melissa Zink or order five thousand dollars for the damage I did to her in 1859 and for the love and gratitude I bear to her, I pledge my estate and all I am worth with the payment of this note after 12 or 14 years of my life, and I will give my estate without cost to the bearer.' (Signed) 'Theodore Bunnell.'"

"My explanation, no one will misconstrue and blame Miss Zink. She is the most virtuous girl I ever knew. I love her with a devoted and sincere love. Would marry her if she would marry me. I went to her home in a storm, found her alone, so thought I would, I assaulted her, a desperate fight between us, she was badly hurt. I gave up when she got an ax. She was only 13 or 14 years of age at that time. I begged forgiveness. She may tell the rest, she never lies."

(Signed) "Theodore Bunnell." A few years later Bunnell came West and lived the life of a plains man, hunting, trapping and conducting a trading store among the Indians. He obtained control of a large tract of land and founded Grand Junction. The amount of wealth did not however obliterate the thought of the misdeed which preyed upon his mind. Letters begging forgiveness were sent continuously to Miss Zink. One of the dated 1870, contained a peculiar provision. It follows:

"I promise to pay Melissa Zink or order five thousand dollars not to marry any man except the one named in this note, and I will give my estate after my death."

(Signed) "Theodore Bunnell." Miss Zink thereafter married a man by the name of Funk and now lays claim to the five thousand dollars provided in the above note.

Death overtook Bunnell at Colorado Springs, while on his way to Indiana. Another note dated at that place five days before his death, adds a pathetic chapter to the complaint. It reads thus:

"$10,000—August 15th, 1907. I promise to pay my dear friend, Melissa Z. Funk, or her daughter or either of them or order, ten thousand dollars. This note is to be paid by the person who settles my estate after my death. Willing to give the money, this note is given for love and gratitude and to reward the one I did injure an unwillingly."

(Signed) "Theodore Bunnell." A letter which has been exhibited to the executor of the estate in California was sent to the same time to Melissa Z. Funk. It begs her to come to Colorado Springs and grant forgiveness before he dies. But the same day it is said to have reached her, a telegram also came announcing the death of Mr. Bunnell.

TAFT READY TO FIGHT CANNON

Speaker Must Cease All Opposition to Tariff Revision, or He May Not Be Re-elected.

PARTY'S PLEDGES MUST BE HONESTLY FULFILLED

Conference Between President-elect and Burton of Ohio Deals Mainly With the Situation in the Lower House.

HOT SPRING, Va., Nov. 21.—President-elect Taft and Representative Burton of Ohio had another extended conference today, at which the speakership question was discussed "as well as nearly everything else," as Mr. Taft put it afterward. What the present state of mind of Mr. Taft is on the speakership question and what will be his future attitude are made apparent beyond all question by a statement made for publication by Mr. Burton after the conference.

"Discussing the question of the speakership I am not assuming to speak for Mr. Taft," said Mr. Burton, "but only to express what seems to me to be a correct view of the situation. The President-elect made certain promises during the campaign, and he is bound to keep them. He was for a thorough and honest revision of the tariff. Besides the tariff there were other promises which must be fulfilled. No doubt Mr. Taft would oppose Mr. Cannon very reluctantly, but as the head of his party as well as the president-elect of the nation, he is bound to meet the expectations of the people and to insist upon the observance of party pledges."

"It is to be hoped there will be such harmony and concert of action between the president-elect and Speaker Cannon that a contest will be avoided."

Regarding the possibility of being a candidate for speaker, Burton's answer was that he was "none the less a candidate for senator because of his visit here."

KILLED BY COMPANION ON A HUNTING TRIP

SANTA ANA, Cal., Nov. 21.—Claude McDowell, aged 35, was shot and killed last night by Max Jones, aged 12, while the two went out on a duck hunt. Thinking the gun was unloaded, pointed it playfully at McDowell and pulled the trigger. It was discharged, the head of shot striking McDowell in the left side above the hip. He was brought to a hospital and died five hours later. The two were hunting up the time of his death and five minutes before he expired asked the surgeon if he believed he was seriously hurt.

FUNERAL GUARDED BY MANY TROOPS

Terrorist Fears Agitated the Russian Imperial Family During Rites Over Alexis.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 21.—The body of Grand Duke Alexis, an uncle of the emperor of Russia, who died recently in Paris, was interred today in the new mausoleum of the Romanoffs within the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. Emperor Nicholas followed in the funeral procession through the crowded and silent streets of his capital. His majesty walked thus from the railroad station to the fortress, a distance of three miles. In spite of apprehensions for the safety of the emperor there was no untoward incident.

The emperor was accompanied by a suite of thirteen grand dukes and 100 generals and admirals. The metropolitan of St. Petersburg and Moscow and the more prominent bishops of the orthodox church participated in the services. The two empresses and number of the grand duchesses met the body at the railroad station on its arrival from Paris and followed in carriages behind the other mourners.

The police and military authorities had taken extreme precautions to prevent any terrorist attempts. The route of march was lined for the entire distance on either side by living walls of troops, which made any attempt on the life of His Majesty virtually impossible. The funeral procession was preceded by the grand duchess of St. Petersburg were alive with troops, proceeding in the direction of the station. The entire guard corps, including the garrisons of Peterhof and Gatchina, turned out for the occasion.

As a precautionary measure the spectators were kept at least twenty feet behind the troops. The funeral train from the frontier arrived punctually on time. The emperor and the grand dukes entered the railroad station together and shortly afterward emerged, bearing the casket on their shoulders. After a short service the coffin was placed on an open hearse and the cortege started.

A delegation of officers from the Prussian regiment of which Grand Duke Alexis was honorary member walked with the emperor and his suite. The escort of honor was composed of detachments from various Russian regiments and it was followed by the carriages bearing the two empresses and the grand duchesses. The streets of the city were white with snow and along the line of march they were strewn with green twigs emblematic of the resurrection. Bell tolls were made before four churches, where the clergy and choir chanted the requiem.

The sun of the fortress were fired in a salute as the procession crossed the frozen nova. After the services, the members of the imperial family had luncheon at the winter palace and then returned to Tsarskoe-Selo.

ROCKEFELLER HAS SWINDLER ARRESTED

Morgan and Carnegie Among Those on the "List" of New York Prisoner.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—William A. Foster of this city was arrested at his hotel tonight on a charge of vagrancy, the complainant being Henry J. Forbes, head of the Mendicancy bureau of the Charities Organization society. Forbes says that John D. Rockefeller made the original complaint, which led to the arrest.

According to Forbes, the prisoner confessed to him after his arrest that he had swindled a number of rich men out of more than $50,000. Forbes states further that Foster kept a letter file of the amounts of money he secured.

In the list given out are Andrew Carnegie and J. P. Morgan. Previous to coming to New York, Foster says, he was in business in Boston and also with several prominent people of California. Forbes did not make clear the method by which he alleges Foster secured money from wealthy men. He said that Rockefeller had received several begging letters from Foster.

PAPER FAMINE SEEMS CERTAIN

Lack of Water Power Prevents the Operation of Necessary Mills in the Eastern States.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 21.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Appleton, Wis., says:

Unless altogether abnormal weather conditions prevail practically throughout the United States between now and the first of next year, this country within six weeks will face a paper famine, according to the best judgment of the largest paper manufacturers of Wisconsin. Conditions in the paper industry, it is reported, have never before been so dubious as at present and it is said that the constantly depleting water power streams throughout the paper making districts in both the East and West are adding daily to the threatening aspect.

Several weeks ago manufacturers were declaring that the lack of rain would soon mean wood pulp worth its weight in gold. Today they are claiming that even for its weight in gold the wood pulp in a few weeks more will not be obtainable. Wood pulp mills of the Fox and Wisconsin river valleys are at present running at less than half capacity and several of them are shutting down entirely because of the lack of water. The wood pulp mills of this state and Minnesota supply only about one-half of the total required by the paper mills of those two states. Wisconsin and Minnesota paper manufacturers are making heavy demands on wood pulp mills in the East and in Canada.

"We are turning away all the way from half a dozen to fifteen telegraphic and telephonic and mail orders for print paper every day," said the manager of one of the largest print paper mills in the Fox river valley today.

STRONG RAILWAY UNION FORMED AT DENVER

Will Include All Present Organizations as Department of Federation of Labor.

DENVER, Nov. 21.—It has been announced that there was born in Denver yesterday a powerful railway union, representing the officers of the "Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor," with ten affiliated organizations as members. H. H. Perham was elected chairman and John Flanagan secretary. The object of the organization is closer union of all railroad employees and seeks to affiliate all railroad organizations with the federation.

The first convention is to be held in Denver and 500,000 employees will be represented by the officers of the organization, which are as follows: Order of Railroad Telegraphers, Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of America, International Freight Handlers' Union, International Association of Machinists, International Association of the United Teamsters, Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Switchmen's Union of North America, International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Right of Way Employees, International Association of Steam Fitters of America.

TEN PERSONS KILLED IN MISSISSIPPI EXPLOSION

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Ten persons are dead and twice as many injured as a result of an explosion today on the Mississippi steamer H. M. Carter near Bayou Goule, about 100 miles north of New Orleans.

The boiler of the Carter exploded while the steamer was on its way from New Orleans to Baton Rouge with a cargo of general merchandise and fifty or more passengers. Fire followed the explosion and the boat was burned to the waters edge. Reliable reports from Bayou Goule are to the effect that 12 or 15 persons are missing. About the same number badly scalded and it is expected several will die. Captain H. M. Carter was blown into the river, but was saved.

Carter Going to Europe. CARACAS, Venezuela, Wednesday, Nov. 18.—President Castro is about to leave Venezuela for Europe with the purpose of undergoing an operation at the hands of skilled physicians.

DIPLOMATS IN CEREMONY AT PEKIN

Condolences of Foreign Powers Received By Entire Body of Chinese Officials at Palace.

IMPERIAL DEAD IN SPLENDID CATAFALQUES

Prince Chun, the New Regent, Presents Appearance of Man in Terror for His Life—Members of Royal Clan Present.

PEKIN, Nov. 21.—The ceremony at the imperial palace this morning when the members of the diplomatic corps presented the condolences of their respective governments on the death of the Emperor, and Dowager Empress of China, was one of the most impressive witnessed in Peking. A notable feature was the presence of every member of the imperial clan, as well as every official who had been reported dead or eliminated from the conduct of affairs of state. This was the answer of the government to the rumors of suicides and deaths current in Peking for the last week.

No opportunity was lost to make the functions striking. Prince Chun, for the first time since the passing away of his majesty, appeared officially at the head of the foreign board. The chiefs of the various governmental departments were present and in addition several thousand minor officials, all dressed in white. At the conclusion of the functions in honor of the dead, the diplomats paid homage to Prince Chun, the regent.

Spectacle Unprecedented. Each foreign legation was represented by three of its members and the spectacle as the foreigners approached the palace was unprecedented. They marched through a throng of mandarins distributed over the three marble terraces leading to the Chien Ching Kung hall, located at the head of the main avenue of the forbidden city. This building is used to receive foreign ministers when they come to present their credentials. Its position is a commanding one. The approaches were lined by a remarkable display of red umbrellas, huge fans and screens of many colors, and other objects of decoration used by the court for state processions. The day was bright and sunny, and the multi-colored umbrellas were vivid against the white stone work and the spotless white garments of the assembled officials. The bodies of their majesties reposed each in a separate hall. The catafalque of the emperor was on a dais in the Chien Ching hall and was draped in black satin, embroidered with dragons. The large image of a bird above the throne, emblematic of the glory and beauty that mood government sheds over the world, was covered over with a white curtain, as were the numerous mirrors in the throne room, while satin screens, set at oblique angles to the catafalque, shut out from the view of the foreign representatives a numerous gathering of mourning palace attendants and servants. Prince Chun, the regent, stood at a table beside the catafalque of the emperor.

Dowager Lay in State. The dowager empress lay in state in her own private palace, called "Huang Chi Tien," where she received the congratulations of the diplomats on November 3rd on the occasion of the seventy-eighth anniversary of her birth. The palace is located in the east wing of the forbidden city; a section heretofore called the harem quarter.

The diplomats passed from the hall, where lay the body of the emperor, to the palace of the dowager, and were preceded by Prince Chun, who covered the distance with unmistakable evidence of haste. The catafalque of her majesty also was flanked by white screens. Behind that on the left were grouped all the women of the imperial clan, attended by their servants, and they were all plainly visible to the foreigners. The men of the imperial clan were behind the screens on the right side. The mourning dress of the court was the same as worn by the populace.

Virtually every official in Peking, many men of high standing who expect office, were present. Prince Ching, president of the foreign board, was conspicuous for his alertness. Yuan Shi Kai, member of the grand council, it was noted, limped from the effect of a recent accident.

The appearance of Prince Chun was noted with the greatest interest. The praises of the regent have been sung during the last few days in fulsome terms, and as a result cautious diplomats were prepared for something different than what these eulogies had led them to expect, particularly in the light of the edict issued yesterday, according to which the regent was to be the prince was a disapprover. He bears a strong resemblance to the late Kuang Hsu. His face was worn and drawn and bore an expression of fright.

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN SUICIDES IN ENAVDA

AUSTIN, Nov. 21.—Dr. C. E. Burton, one of the most prominent physicians of this section, committed suicide in his office here today by placing a can of ether under his nose and shooting a hole in his head with a 38 caliber revolver. No cause for Burton's act is known.

He was the physician who saved the life of Dr. W. M. McMillan, the traveling postmaster of Chislev, the firm time, when he took chislev with suicidal intent. Later von Tiedemann killed himself by shooting Burton with a middle aged man and stood high in medical circles.

WOMAN FLOGGED WITH HALTER CHAIN

Pitiful Case Called to Attention of Humane Society.

Secretary Harvey Intercepts Cruel Husband Beating Young Wife.

Application was made by William Harvey, Sr., on behalf of the local humane society, to Judge Graham yesterday afternoon for a warrant for the arrest of John Blum, a day laborer, who resides with his wife and two children at 237 Lily street, in Peter's addition, south of the city, for cruelly beating his 26-year-old wife, Christina, with a club and a chain last Thursday evening.

Accompanied by Police Officer Harry Knight, Mr. Harvey proceeded to the defendant's residence and there found the wife lying on a bed, suffering from the flogging she had received.

She informed the officer that she maintained her husband and their two children by working in the packing house at $2.50 a day and at other times, when the packing house was closed, by doing washing at $2 a day.

"The husband came home at intervals when he was not taking hay and expected her to feed him, he never contributing a cent to her support," said Mr. Harvey yesterday. "They lived in a cabin 12x14, built on the back of the lot. She said that on Thursday night as she was retiring he beat her with a scantling until the blood flowed from many wounds; that when the scantling flew out of his hands, by reason of the force of the blow, he picked up a halter chain and continued to beat her with that, until she and the bed were covered with blood. Her screams attracted the neighbors' attention and a crowd of them assembled and demanded him to open the door. This he refused to do and continued beating her. They then broke open the door while the women cowered the wife to a neighboring cottage. Before they got her out of his way, he broke loose from his captives, seized her by the hair of the head, and beat her with his fists, leaving a large quantity of hair from her scalp."

Harvey took Mrs. Blum in his buggy and brought her to Dr. Long. She is said to be covered with wounds from her forehead and neck down to her ankles.

Mr. Harvey told the court that this poor girl had had a very unhappy existence. Three years ago she left the public schools, a fairly educated Russian girl and took service with Mrs. Vanderlip.

After many months of service, she, taking her wages home every night to her father, Mrs. Vanderlip purchased $7.50 worth of underclothes for her, she giving the girl $7.50 to take home to her father.

Because she did not bring the whole of her wages home, he was flogged her in a most unmerciful manner, and Mr. Harvey applied for a warrant for the father's arrest.

To avoid the service of the warrant, the father sold his property and went back to Europe. On the 4th of November of last year, Mr. Harvey was again sent for.

Christiana had married in the meantime and this same George Blum had flogged her most unmercifully. Judge Graham at that time granted a warrant for the husband, but the wife being refused to prosecute, and there being no evidence outside of the wife's testimony, the prosecution had to be dropped. This time there is an abundance of evidence from the neighbors and Mr. Harvey says he will prosecute the case to the limit.

ONLY ONE

There is only one drug-store in this city where you can get a genuine specific for kidney disease. This is a strong statement, but we are prepared to prove it.

Here's the point: the census shows that of the tens of thousands annually dying from kidney trouble that over nine-tenths (to be accurate, ninety-two out of every one hundred of them) sooner or later assumed the form technically known to physicians as "Bright's Disease," although it is commonly called "kidney trouble" in the home. It is known to those in the drug trade that Bright's Disease has been incurable up to a recent discovery, and as we have the monopoly of that discovery for this city we have the only specific for kidney disease in this city.

In view of the census showing that over nine-tenths of all the census kidney cases sooner or later take this form, how under the sun can people who have kidney trouble expect to get well except through this specific?

If you have kidney trouble, our store is the only one in this city that has a genuine specific effective in nearly nine-tenths of all cases. In fact, if you will put the question skillfully to our competitors and ask them if they have a genuine cure for Bright's Disease they won't even claim to you they have, for the books admit there has been none.

We sent a long way for this Fenton's Renal Compound for kidney-troubled people.

ALLEGED KRYPTOKS

There is the genuine Kryptok, and there is a cheap imitation that is sometimes passed on an unsuspecting purchaser.

Kryptoks have been advertised by us for more than five years as the best far-and-near glass made, for it has no cement, no pieces patched on, and no conspicuous lines upon its surface. Kryptoks are now sold by reputable opticians every where.

The public is advised to demand with every pair a certificate of genuineness. The honest optician is glad to give this. The dishonest one may demur, and then for the sake of your eyes you should refuse the glasses and go where you know you can get the right article.

Never Lose a Tooth If You Can Help It

Some people imagine that as soon as a tooth begins to ache it should be extracted. They think it is so easy to get a false tooth to take the place of the natural one. Some are even so foolish as to have sound teeth extracted because they think an artificial tooth is handsome.

Never have a tooth extracted as long as there is a chance to save it. A false tooth never gives so much satisfaction as a well cared for natural one.

When your teeth trouble you consult a good dentist and follow his advice. You may think it cheaper to lose a tooth that may be saved, but in the end you pay dearly for it.

The conscientious dentist will try to save your teeth and save you money.

How foolish it would be for a patient to tell a doctor what medicine to use and how to treat him!

Isn't it just as foolish not to follow your dentist's advice?

Let us examine your teeth. It won't cost you anything.

PACKERS WANT AGREEMENT, TOO

Want to Buy, If They Can Get Terms.

Price of Raisins and Time of Payment Big Questions at Tomorrow's Meeting.

A sentiment is expressed on raisin row that the packers will be glad to meet with the growers' selling committee tomorrow and talk over the disposition of the great mass of the 1908 crop, which this committee is empowered to dispose of. The packers seem to have been all through the time the pool was being formed, anxious to see the growers succeed. Now, they will be anxious to listen to what the growers have to say, and more than one packer stated yesterday that he expected to see something done if the attitude taken by the growers was anything near what the packers would wish.

But, in the first place, said one prominent packer, the matter should be on a business basis. Then, there will be a question of price to get together on. The packers will be little doubtful that this question will cause some flurry in the raisin market. However, many things can be done through discussion, says one, and he confessed an inability to predict what would be the outcome of the matter.

An informal meeting at the Chamber of Commerce of the selling committee yesterday talked over at a fraction over 3 cents. This indicates that the growers are inclined to believe their position strong, and will talk a cent price, in all probability, strongly. On the other hand it is probable that the packers will talk something like 3 1/2 cents something.

One point raised in this connection was discussed yesterday with several packers. Will the packers care to make terms with the selling committee while they, the packers, may still buy pools from a few of those holding on the outside at a low price? was asked. The answer was "yes," as the packers want to see the pool perfected; they themselves can do a better business on a rising market than on a falling, and can better afford to pay half a cent more than to lose half a cent, at any time. For this reason, they are not anxious, say the wise ones, to see any slitting, and want to perfect some agreement.

The sentiment in the East seems to be non-committal. The trade there is watching the situation closely, and judgment is being held. It seems the success of the pool is not quite believed in, implicitly, but it is believed in enough to stiffen up the tone of the market. But, so soon as the growers get together with the packers, and it is seen that the raisin crop is on a sound business basis, it is believed the trade will be convinced, and a stable tone restored to the market, which will enable the wholesaler to push raising more than he has for some time past. Instability makes him incline, it is observed, to be cautious in dealing, and he can do hard to mouth trading, with no speculative feature to it.

Payment, in case agreement is reached as to the disposition of the pool, will probably not be cash. In fact, the packers, or some of them, will probably want payment stipulated by August 1, 1909, no sooner. In case cents should be paid, bearing 20,000 tons in the Kings and local pool, the price of the block at the disposal of the committee would be $1,600,000. The question of the date for final payment will probably be another matter presented before the session in Judge Graham's office tomorrow.

SPERRY REFUSES "SHORE LEAVE"

Says Danger of Cholera at Manila Is Too Great.

Citizens Are Indignant and Appeal Question to President Roosevelt.

MANILA, Nov. 21.—Rear Admiral Sperry addressed a letter to Governor General Smith today, saying that it had been decided not to grant the men of the Atlantic battleship fleet leave of absence during the stay of the ships in Manila bay. This decision, the rear admiral says, is based on the advice of the medical officers of the fleet, as well as his own conviction.

The latter states that the daily reports of the health department show the presence of cholera in Manila, and that during the progress of the epidemic a large percentage of the cases reported were fatal or moribund, showing that they had been concealed. Rear Admiral Sperry then states that the house to house inspection has been abandoned, and claims that there is always danger of a renewal and extension of the infection from the provinces.

The rear admiral next cites the recent report on the cholera made by Commissioner Worcester, condemning portions of the city of Manila as unsanitary. The letter closes by pointing out the necessity of forbidding the landing of the men as the fleet is to make a long cruise in the tropics after leaving here on route home, besides the danger of its personnel being liable to quarantine in the Mediterranean.

Governor General Smith is communicating the letter of Rear Admiral Sperry, as well as the facts in regard to the situation to the government at Washington and it is expected that President Roosevelt will be asked to examine into the facts and pass finally on the matter.

The post of Rear Admiral Sperry is bitterly resented here, being pronounced unjust, unnecessary and unduly timid. The health officials resumed their house to house inspection yesterday and it is being continued today. Not a single case has yet been revealed.

Rear Admiral Harber, commanding the third division of the Pacific fleet, has removed all restriction from his men and hundreds of them fill the streets tonight, all being enthusiastically received. The indignant citizens propose cancelling all invitations extended to the Atlantic fleet and organizing an elaborate reception to the Pacific fleet for the purpose of emphasizing and drawing attention to the anomaly of one rear admiral refusing shore leave to his men, and the other granting it without restriction.

REEDLEY WANTS NEW COUNTY ROAD

Delegation of Citizens Appear Before Supervisors.

New Highway to Bring Fresno Into Closer Touch With the Mountains.

About twenty citizens of Reedley, with O. J. Woodward, R. E. Mannheim and M. R. Madary of this city, appeared before the board of supervisors yesterday morning asking for a county road from Reedley to the Ten Mile creek road. After listening to arguments urging the construction of the road, the supervisors instructed the county surveyor to view the road and survey it in order that an estimate of the cost might be obtained.

In asking for this road, the people of Reedley are seeking to bring back into Fresno county the freight trade which now goes by the way of Lemon Cove. Although the proposed road from Reedley to the Ten Mile road is about thirty miles, ten miles of the road, now known as the Sand Creek road, has been built. The road will extend from Reedley to Sand Creek, thence along the ridge to the crest of the hill, joining the Visalia, Millwood and state road at Happy Gap. The portion now in operation is in the valley.

The proposed route is not only about fifteen miles shorter than the present route to Lemon Cove, but the grade is much easier. In getting Fresno city into closer touch with the mountains, Reedley will also share in the benefits to be derived by the change.

Five miles of the road cuts across the corner of Tulare county, but it is not expected that much trouble will be experienced in the building of this section, inasmuch as Tulare is a disinterested party now.

CATHOLIC FAIR ENDS IN BLAZE OF GLORY

Concluding Night Given Over to the Young Men's Institute and Attendance Was Large.

The bazaar held in Parish hall for the benefit of St. John's church closed last night, after a most successful week. Since the opening on last Monday evening large crowds have been the order, and that of closing night was by far the largest. The hall was literally packed with people. Good humor and pleasure ruled.

The evening was given over to the young men's institute, the members of which society turned out in large numbers. The entire time was devoted to the disposal of the articles on the various tables and rivalry for possession of some of them was very keen.

During the week many prominent people of town visited the fair. All concerned are pleased with the results, and it can be truly said the closing was in a blaze of glory.

THE NEW BIG STICK

The announcement by Congressman Burton, practically official from President-elect Taft, may mean that Taft will wield a bigger and more brilliant stick than Roosevelt. President Roosevelt has got things out of Speaker Cannon partly by mild methods and partly by rough, but he has never gone to the point of laying down a public ultimatum to him. This is what President-elect Taft seems to have done. If the statement of Burton is authorized, it means that President Taft will demand explicit pledges of Cannon, on the tariff and other questions, and that, failing in this, he will use his influence as president to defeat Cannon for the Speakership.

If this turns out to be so, watch Wall Street howl. There are two sorts of Republicanism, but the Taft-Roosevelt sort is in the ascendant. Most of the people are for it, and its popularity accounts for the tremendous Republican victory. The other sort, the Cannon-stund-pat sort, represents comparatively few people, but of these an astonishing number get into political conventions and into Congress. It took the big stick to club the national Republican convention into really representing Republican voters, and it made take the big stick to club Congress into representing the people. The people do not want Cannon, but Congress does. As a matter of fact, Congress, from its internal standpoint is right. Cannon really is the best man to run Congress, and somebody must run it. But Taft is right in demanding that Cannon in doing so shall represent the sort of Republicanism which this year's victory stood for. If he can club Cannon into doing that, so much the better. If not, then it is war, between Taft and Cannon, with Taft the ultimate victor.

And the howl will come from the "interests," who want Cannon and stand-pat, and from the academicians, who don't like the big stick, and imagine it is none of the president's business who is Speaker. But it is. The president, instead of being the least representative of the people among our officials, has become the most direct representative of the whole American people. Instead of guarding themselves against executive aggression, the people gladly use the president as the most direct organ of their will. If President Taft can make Congress behave, it will be the people doing it.

SOME DRAMATIC RIOTS

Appropos of the efforts to suppress "The Cleansman"—in which we suspect the press agent—some almost forgotten reminiscences of the political plays of another age may be interesting.

In France, from 1789 to 1793, a series of revolutionary and counter-revolutionary plays kept Paris in turmoil. Most of the plays were beneath criticism, from a dramatic or literary standpoint, but they managed to get themselves erected into the most violent political issues. Curiously enough, these political riots were nearly always started by what corresponded to the present-day press agent. Sometimes the trick worked well. Once, in the case of a reactionary play that overlapped the Terror, it worked too well.

"L'Ami des lois," by Jean-Louis Laya, was a play inculcating somewhat clumsily respect for law and order, but presented, as a reactionary propaganda, at the very inopportune date of January 2, 1793. The piece at the first representation was a tremendous success; the streets around the playhouse were blocked with crowds as early as three o'clock in the afternoon, and at the representation all the shouting sentiments against anarchy were applauded to the echo, by an aristocratic audience suspected of containing a sprinkling of secretly returned emigres. After four days, the piece was suppressed by order of the general council of the Commune. The decree of prohibition, posted in front of the theater, attracted a great crowd, which shouted demands for "L'Ami des lois." A riot followed, which was suppressed by military display. Appeal was immediately taken to the National Convention, then in session for the trial of the king. The Convention reversed the decree of the municipal body, and ordered the play to proceed, which it did, closing amid scenes of tumult, at one o'clock in the morning. The Commune, the next day, retaliated by closing all the theaters. This was modified, to permit the representation of harmless classics, and two comedies of Moliere were announced. The audience refused to listen to the great poetry of Moliere, and demanded "L'Ami des lois." Finally, as a compromise, volunteers from the audience read the text of the play, without acting. The National Convention, after the vote on the appeal to the people in the case of Louis XVI returned, on January 16, to the other drama of the stage, and prohibited the further representation of the piece. The crowd still demanded it, but the reign of terror coming on, the players were themselves thrown into prison, and Laya, the author, was formally outlawed, and obliged to conceal himself. Yet all this agitation, so disastrous in the end, was started in the first place as a pure press-agent advertisement.

In another case, the play "Charles IX, on l'Ecole des rois," by Chénier, in 1789, the same device had been tried with success, and the revolutionary play, twice a failure, was twice resurrected by worked-up riots between its partisans and opponents.

This piece of almost forgotten dramatic history is interesting, in itself, and is instructive, as showing that the ways of the press-agent are no new thing in the world.

There have been riots of literary, musical and national, as well as political factionalism. The first attempt to present Wagner's operas in Paris were greeted with cat-calls and missiles from the galleries, and it became a matter of French patriotism to riot against Wagner. Yet, only a few years later, we have seen "die Valkyrie" presented in very bad French, but in magnificent musical and scenic setting, to an enthusiastic and appreciative audience in the Grand Opera House in Paris.

When Ibsen's "Master Builder," under the name of "Baumeister Solness," had its first performance in Germany, at Leipzig, the scenes were almost riotous. The play is Ibsen's worst, or best, according to the point of view. Nobody but an Ibsenite knows what it means, and no two of these agree. All the characters are represented as insane, and there is no making sense out of what they do. Critics allege, though, that a mystic symbolism is concealed in the jumble, and half the audience thought so. The other half thought the enthusiasts were as crazy as the characters on the stage. The actors went through their lines as best they might, probably in doubt themselves what it was all about, while the two halves of the audience, one applauding and the other hissing, glared and jeered at each other. It was a dramatic scene, but most of the drama was not on the stage.

We don't do such things here, largely, no doubt, because we do not take our amusements seriously.

HANDICAPPED VICTORIES

"I have been humiliated all my life," said an able-bodied, able-minded man, the other day, as he stumbled down the stairs, "by being outdone by cripples of one sort or another. I stumble down these stairs, but I have seen blind people who could trip up and down them with never a mistake. I can barely pick out a simple tune with one finger on a piano, but I have seen deaf boys play good music, in time, in a brass band, not one of whom could hear his own music. I can scarcely read my own writing, but I have seen armless men write beautifully with their toes. I have seen one-legged men who could outrun me, and even congenital imbeciles trained to surpass me in some mental tasks. I believe I am the equal of most normal men, but I must confess with shame my inferiority to many sub-normal men."

All of which is only preliminary to a query how wondrous a world this would be if only we could all see and hear as well as deaf and blind Helen Keller. As witness this description of sounds, from her book, "The World I Live In":

"The small rustle in tufts of grass, the silky swish of leaves, the buzz of insects, the hum of bees in blossoms, the flutter of a bird's wings after his bath, and the slender, rippling vibration of water running over pebbles."

There is no one on earth who can do that better; it simply could not be better done. And if the hearing people of earth had but one-half that power to hear things, the world would be filled with music. If the beauty of the earth shone half as brightly to all the seeing as it does to Helen Keller's sightless orbs, this would be a radiantly glorious world. If Helen Keller's power of speech could become a general possession, this dumb world would ring with eloquence. And if half the courage she has shown in overcoming great obstacles could be shown by ordinary humanity in overcoming lesser ones, there would be no more poverty, no more stupidity, no more vice or hate or unhappiness in the world.

All of which shows, by the example of what training and ambition have done for the lost favored of the sons and daughters of men what progress still awaits us, whenever mankind really begins itself to do its best.

Those who were inclined to hold Francis J. Heney responsible for the constant "clashes" in the Ruff trial, will do well to read the accounts of the similar clashes, still continuing, now that other attorneys have taken Heney's place. The truth is, such "clashes" are inevitable so long as the defense of Ruff is conducted in the manner insisted on by Ach and Dozier. Even the court is not able to suppress Ach without "clash," and probably it will be necessary to send him to jail, before the trial can progress. And then the appeal court may set aside the verdict, on the ground that the action prejudiced the jury.

FALSE REPORT SENT OF SPANISH KING'S DEATH

PARIS, Nov. 22.—Rumors are in circulation here that King Alfonso of Spain has been killed by a bomb in Madrid. The rumors, however, are unconfirmed and are not credited at the Spanish embassy, which announced that it had no news of such an occurrence.

The Havas News Agency queried Madrid regarding the rumor, but up to an early hour this morning had received no response.

The Havas News Agency at 7 o'clock this morning received the following dispatch from Madrid in reply to its message regarding the rumor that the Spanish king had been assassinated:

"The king continues his hunt in Madrid. The rumors of assassination are untrue."

RESCUERS IN MINE DIE OF POISONOUS GAS

SALT LAKE, Utah, Nov. 21.—Inhaling noxious and poisonous powder dust while in search of the bodies of two Italian miners who had succumbed, three men composing a rescue party gave up their lives in a shaft at the Utah Copper mine at Bingham Junction tonight.

E. Kent Smith, assistant manager of the mine, and two shovelers, Tom Burns and White Wilson, are the men who died in the work of rescue. The names of the Italians are not known.

ROCKWELL CITY, Iowa, Nov. 21.—The jury in the trial of John M. Brown, accused of the murder of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Brown, returned today a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, the penalty for which is two to eight years.

Brown beat his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Brown, to death with an Indian club.

The killing was the outcome of a family quarrel which started at the breakfast table over the invalid wife of the aged man, whom the young woman was alleged to have abused.

TAG DAY

SATURDAY, NOV. 28, 1908

The Warner company believes that primarily Tag Day ought to be a lot of fun for the people of Fresno; and naturally that it will result in doing good to an organization which is certainly unselfishly devoted to the betterment of our town, namely the Young Women's Christian Association.

Los Angeles has just had a "Prosperity Week," the attendance on one occasion of which was over 200,000 people. Fresno, of course has Prosperity by the year, so we do not have to limit it to a week.

But it certainly is true that the American people want to be stimulated and also that they take their matters of charity altogether too seriously and we accordingly recommend an innovation which shows so much promise and possibility of mixing the element of fun and cheerfulness in one of charity. Thanksgiving week is also a propitious time for such an occasion.

We do not know anything about the plans of the managers of this occasion, but assume that it is somewhat on the plan a "Running" for the "Skull and Keys" would be in a college town with the added element of having real fun coupled with doing good.

To stimulate the occasion and assist the managers in their organization work we take a great pleasure in contributing a Diamond Locket which will make a valuable "tag," two silver loving cups and one of our new "little finger" rings, which by the way are the latest and most desirable items so far out this season for women.

These trophies are on display in our windows during this week up to "Tag Day," which will be Saturday, November 28th, next.

AN INSTRUMENT THAT FEELS

A new instrument for determining the hardness of substances is attracting some attention among engineers. This device, which has been named the scleroscope, from the Greek skleros ("hard"), measures hardness by the rebound of a hammer with a fine pointed end, which is allowed to drop on the tested substance from a little height.

It has been noted that the different methods of measuring hardness used hitherto, such as scratching with a diamond, filing, pressing with a steel ball, etc., do not measure precisely the same quality. A substance may be hard to an instantaneous action and soft to a slow and continuous one, as in the case of asphalt, which may be fractured by a quick blow, but yields like wax to slow pressure.

What kind of hardness is it that the scleroscope measures? A writer on the subject in the Iron Age defines it somewhat vaguely and forbiddingly as "the recuperative energy instantaneously available upon permanent deformation." This definition will surely confirm the layman in his unfortunate impression that scientific phraseology is necessarily obscure, but if it be accepted, and if this is what we mean by "hardness," then the new instrument shows some interesting facts. Among others, it demonstrates that metals under stress are harder; that metals under compression, though in the soft alloy known as "Babbitt metal," it produces exactly the opposite effect.

A special feature of the instrument is that it alone, among devices for testing hardness, indicates relative degrees of the quality. Always assuming that the inventor's definition is to be accepted, we may now say not only that one substance is harder than another, but that it is twice or four times as hard.

Its use depending on this feature may be very wide. The inventor, for instance, lays down the law that a cutting tool should be three or four times as hard as the object to be cut. This instrument furnishes a means of maintaining this proportion and so increasing both the efficiency and the life of tools.

The scleroscope will also be very useful where the hardness of two or more different metals is to be compared, as, for instance, where a steel shaft is to be adjusted to a brass box. It will easily determine variations of hardness at different points of a surface. Crystalline structure in hardened steel may also be detected by its aid. This is now generally discovered by breaking a piece and looking for crystals, which is somewhat the inventor says, like testing the quality of a match by striking it. Scleroscope, in short, promises to be an extremely useful addition to the engineer's stock of devices for testing structural material.

STRANGE WOMAN IN GUNNESS CASE

Defense Endeavors to Show That the Notorious Murder-
ess of Indiana Is Still Alive.

LA PORTE, Ind., Nov. 21.—The sensation in the Lamphere trial today were the stories told by Daniel M. Hutzen and his daughters, by Fred R. Ryckman and by John Anderson, who saw a strange woman with Mrs. Gunness on the Saturday before the fire. Hutzen and his daughters declared on the stand that they saw Mrs. Gunness on July 20 but they were unable to distinguish her features through a black veil. Hutzen, a neighbor of Mrs. Gunness and one of the men hired by the sheriff to dig in the ruins for the bodies after the fire, declared he knew Mrs. Gunness so well he could not be mistaken. He said:

"I saw her on the road near the hoppen on July 20. I was returning from town with a hayrack and saw two persons at the Gunness place. She had on a light skirt, black waist, wide rimmed hat, a white veil on the hat and a black veil that came down to her chin. There was a man with her. He weighed about 150 pounds and had a gray mustache and gray hair."

"When I got within two wagon lengths they got into their buggy and drove on and I tried to follow them. They got ahead of me and I did not like to follow them. There was too good a chance of getting a chunk of lead. The buggy had a low running gear and black top. The horse was a gray one with dapples on his hips as large as a half dollar."

Ecelyn, the 11 year old daughter of Hutzen, who followed her father on the stand, testified that she saw Mrs. Gunness in a buggy with a man. They passed her on the road. The girl said Mrs. Gunness had on two veils, a black one and a white one, the black one being over her face. The girl said:

"When I saw her she turned her face away from me."

Edwina Hutzen, 9 years old, sister of the preceding witness, said:

"I was playing by the big gate by the road. I saw Mrs. Gunness go by with a man. She had on a double veil and a white bloused hat. I did not know the man."

John Anderson, another neighbor of Mrs. Gunness, saw a strange woman with Mrs. Gunness the Saturday before the fire. This is the woman, who, the defense claims, must have been murdered by Mrs. Gunness, and whose body was the adult body found in the ruins.

Fred R. Ryckman testified that he had worked for Mrs. Gunness three different times. One afternoon under her direction he dug a hole five feet deep and five feet long. Later an automobile with two men arrived. Mrs. Gunness was in town, but upon her instructions the witness told the men that the key was under the mat. They went into the house, he said, and there was some drinking. Before he went home, one of the men gave him a glass of wine and on the way home he became unconscious and did not know anything until the next afternoon. One of the men gave Mrs. Gunness money to pay him.

Mr. Walter F. Haines will go on the stand Monday to tell of the finding of poison in the stomachs of Andrew Holcomb and the supposed Mrs. Gunness and two of her children.

The Round Savory Roaster will hold a large chicken or a ten-pound roast of beef, yet go into the smallest size oven made. Not only good for roasting meat and fowl, but for baked apples, baked beans, baking bread, meat pies, scalloped oysters, etc. It is just the thing where a small roaster is wanted.

Perfectly smooth curved surface, without an angle, or a corner, or a groove, or a seam, or a fold of any kind—just a clear unbroken surface, that's as easy to clean as a china bowl. A woman sees right away where the Savory Roaster makes it easy for her.

Seamless—Siemens-Martin Blue Steel

No culinary wrinkles needed when you have a "SAVORY" Seamless Roaster
Just put in the roast and leave it alone until it's done.
Can't Burn—The bottom is slightly raised from the oven.
Air Tight—This keeps all the good meaty flavor from escaping.
Self-Basting—By the steam from the roast's own rich, natural juices, which collect in the roaster's concave bottom. Browns itself and produces the sweetest flavor ever tasted in meat.
Sanitary—Being "seamless"—the smoothest roaster made, and the easiest to clean; wash it like a dish.
Made of blued steel; different sizes; also enameled.

WHEN THE BLOOD GOES WRONG

Man Suffers in Many Places Like a City Whose Sewers Spread Disease.

When the blood of man becomes impure and filled with poison and decay, it throws off the impurities and leaves them to force and faster them, selves through the skin, just like a city in whose sewers foul gases arise and escape up through cellars into houses, bringing contagion and death. What a city needs is a generous flow of pure water to carry along and away the sewage which breeds death and disease. What the system needs for the blood that is impure is a purifier that will stimulate the flow of the precious fluid, that will check the impurities and remove them by the flow of the blood from the system naturally without irritation, infection and pain.

Calcium Sulphide is the strongest blood purifier known to science and medicine. What pure, running water does to the impurities in a city's sewer Calcium Sulphide does for the blood of man.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers give the human body all the strength and vigor of Calcium Sulphide, in better form than any other mode of presenting it to the system. A recent article has stated that most Calcium Sulphide preparations contain but 20 per cent of the strength of this wonderful cleanser, the other 80 per cent being lost by evaporation, chemical or decay.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain other blood purifiers like Quassa, Golden Seal and Eucalyptus, each having a distinct function to perform; also an alternative and laxative to throw off through the human sewerage system (the bowels) the waste and poisonous matter extricated by the blood purifiers.

These little wafers are a tremendous power and act with amazing rapidity in their work of cleansing the blood and clearing the skin. Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c per box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

SOLOIST AT M. E. CHURCH TODAY

Francis Murphy, Jr., the Soloist, Who Will Sing Twice at the First Methodist Church Today.

Francis Murphy Jr., grandson of the famous temperance lecturer, will furnish special music at the First M. E. church, on M and Tuolumne streets, both at the regular service this morning and at the opening meeting of the Murphy temperance movement this evening. Mr. Murphy is a soloist who accompanies his brother, Tom Murphy, the lecturer to furnish and direct the music, in connection with temperance meetings in the various towns where they work.

NEGROES OBJECT TO "THE GLANSMAN" IN THE LODGE ROOM.

A delegation of colored people visited the mayor's office yesterday morning and registered an objection to the production of the "Glansman" in this city. They asked that action might be taken either to prevent the play from being produced or so modifying it that certain features particularly objectionable to the negro might be eliminated.

The matter was taken under advisement, although no definite form of action was announced.

Missionary Reception
The missionary reception given at the home of Mrs. J. M. Bramblitt by the Cumberland Presbyterian ladies on Thursday afternoon was a success. Most of the churches in town were represented by several of their officers, who expressed themselves as both gratified and surprised at the work accomplished by the Cumberland ladies who have labored under peculiar difficulties. After a short program a social hour was spent, during which refreshments were served to the visiting ladies.

PLENTY OF EXERCISE NECESSARY

Plenty of regular exercise must be taken in order to keep the body in a healthy condition. Any exercise or unusual exertion, however, is sure to cause stiffness and soreness of the muscles and joints.

To counteract this effect there is nothing better than Sloan's Liniment. Lay it on lightly where the muscles have been strained; it requires no rubbing. It penetrates right to the bone, relieves any congestion and inflammation and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Sloan's Liniment is a great boon to athletes, for it not only relieves pain and stiffness, but it is an excellent remedy for sprains, cuts, bruises and cramps.

Mr. J. F. Price of Tusculum, Ala., writes: "I am an engineer on the Southern road from Chattanooga to Memphis, Tenn. The continued elevation of my arm on the throttle, the strain of a sore feeling when on a long journey, and there is nothing that will take the soreness out like Sloan's Liniment, and I keep a bottle in my grip always."

Laundry Workers
The laundry workers held a dance and lunch last Friday at Woodmen of the World hall, which was a jolly affair all through. Miss Jessie Butler sang "Love Me and the World is Mine," very pleasingly. Miss McClaren gave a pleasing rendition of "Somebody Loves Me." Miss Rose Ludke played and sang and Patrick Prather and Steve De Costa furnished a lot of fun with a specialty which they presented. Mr. and Mrs. Joselyn served refreshments.

DEGREE OF HONOR

Degree of Honor men last night with an unusually large attendance. Sick members were all reported better. For social purposes, the lodge has been divided into two sections called "A" and "B" sections. Last evening, the A's entertained. ## DEDICATION OF MONUMENT TO MARTYRS OF PRISON SHIPS

THE STORY OF THEIR EXPERIENCES FORMS ONE OF THE MOST TRAGIC PAGES IN THE HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—With tearing crowds, and in the presence of a distinguished company the Prison Ship Martyrs' monument in Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn, was dedicated today. The program prepared for the day included a Mass by Twenty-third regiment band, T. F. Shannon leader, closing with the "Stars Spangled Banner," all standing; prayer, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman; poem, Thomas Walsh; oration, Hon. William H. Taft; presentation of monument on behalf of the national government by Secretary of War Luke E. Wright; acceptance on behalf of the state by Governor Charles E. Hughes; acceptance on behalf of the city, by the chairman of the board of aldermen, Patrick J. McGowan; address on behalf of the Tammany Society or Columbian Order, by Daniel F. Cohalan, grand sachem.

It was a gala day in Brooklyn. The Stars and Stripes floated from all the public buildings and from hundreds of private residences. Almost every house in the immediate neighborhood of Fort Green Park was decorated with flags and bunting. The speakers' rostrum was handsomely decorated with shields, large brass eagles and the coat of arms of the thirteen original states. The dedication of the monument was made the occasion of a military pageant, 10,000 soldiers of the United States Army, National Guard of the state of New York, and sailors and marines from the navy yard participating in the demonstration. Along the line of parade spectators thronged the sidewalks and loomed Mr. Taft and other notables.

It was after more than a century of agitation by individuals and organizations that bones representing approximately 16,000 "martyrs" of the Revolutionary War, who died in the prison ships Jersey and other vessels in Wallabout Bay, Brooklyn, lie at last in a fittingly marked place for which the government, New York state and hundreds of individuals made contributions.

The speakers at the exercises paid glowing tribute to the memory of the American patriots who lost their lives in the prison ships, and in memory of whose martyrdom the monument was erected. The monument itself is a remarkable structure. It is one of the largest fluted columns in the country, largest proportioned and of imposing dimensions. The column, designed by the late Stanford White, is of Newport white granite, 150 feet high, and rises to a height of 250 feet above the street level. The shaft is eighteen feet in diameter at the base and tapers to a diameter of twelve feet at the top. The column is surmounted by a bronze statue of Liberty, the figure of which is twelve feet in diameter and weighs eight tons. The total cost of the monument exceeded $400,000. Of this Congress appropriated $100,000 and the remainder came from the state of New York, the city of New York and from voluntary contributions.

The story of the prison ship martyrs forms one of the most tragic pages in the history of America. Certain vessels used in the struggle for independence were anchored in Wallabout Bay, Brooklyn, during the Revolution and became veritable charnel houses as English prisoners from American soldiers. Confined below decks, with no attempt at sanitary arrangements, the mortality of the unfortunate captives was frightful. It is estimated by the most careful historians that no fewer than 12,000 American patriots lost their lives in these prison ships.

Each morning the English guards would call to the prisoners: "Turn out your dead." These were buried on the beach in shallow graves until some time after the war, when through the patriotic efforts of the Tammany society they were given decent burial in the lower Hudson avenue.

This occurred about 1865. In 1870 the remains were transferred to Fort Greene Park and placed in a vault. Early in the present year, under the direction of inspectors from the war and navy departments, the remains were removed from the old vault and placed in the crypt of the magnificent new monument. The remains of the martyrs were found to consist for the most part of bones broken in many places, only one perfect skeleton being found.

The vicissitudes of the remains of the soldiers and sailors who died of fever and starvation and rotted in the foul juice of the British prison ships have been many and have caused more than one outbreak of public indignation. It was in 1892, at a Brooklyn town meeting, that definite steps were first urged to properly bury the remains. Nothing was done until 1898, when the Tammany society secured funds for a temporary wooden tomb, which was constructed on Hudson street.

With passing years the structure fell into decay, the bones became exposed and children played with them. Public feeling became aroused, and in 1878 the city of Brooklyn passed a resolution that the bones be collected, several loads of them, to a tomb at Fort Greene Park, under the stairs of the entrance, where they remained until work had begun on the present handsome memorial.

Twenty years ago, when the project for the monument was first launched, the Society of Old Brooklynites sent a representative to England, who copied the names of eight thousand victims of the prison ships which he found in the records of the British government. Three of the ships called to make any report and for this reason the record is far from complete. The thirteen original states were represented among the victims of the prison ships. In the recognition of this fact each of the thirteen states sent official representatives to the dedication exercises.

The experiences of the prison ship "martyrs" constitute one of the most frightful chapters in American history. Eleven thousand soldiers and sailors died in the "Jersey" alone, a ship constructed to accommodate only 400 men, into which more than 1000 prisoners were usually crammed. Many were kept there for years. A survivor, Captain Thomas Dring, vividly depicted the scenes of the horrible incarceration.

"Registered and sent below, new-comers suffered terribly from the intolerable heat and foul air, and when they sought the narrow air holes they found them blocked by others, who fought with all their strength for even the faintest breath of the precious air."

Of the bread furnished the prisoners, the Rev. Thomas Andros wrote in his accounts: "I do not recollect seeing any which was not full of living vermin, but out it, worms and all, were a constant accompaniment of the great copper in which the prisoners' meat was boiled. It was thus described in the memoirs of Ebenezer Fox, also a prisoner aboard the Jersey: "The inside of the copper had become corroded to a degree that it was lined with a coat of veridigis. The Jersey, from her size and lying near the shore, was imbedded in the mud; and I do not recollect seeing her aloft during the whole time I was a prisoner. All the filth which accumulated among from the muzzles of a thousand men was daily thrown overboard and would remain there until carried away by the tide. The impurity of the water may be easily conceived, and in this water our meat was boiled."

HOW ELECTRICITY HEATS CHAFING DISH

Principle, That of Resistance, Explodes Submarine Torpedoes.

Whenever electricity is flowing through a wire the temperature of that wire is raised above the surrounding atmosphere. The amount of heat developed depends upon the nature of the conducting wire and its size. It is a fact that every path through which electricity flows offers some obstruction to the flow. This quality is known as resistance, and the resistance of a definite length of wire is given diameter of any material can readily be measured. It is expressed in units called "ohms" after the German scientist, Dr. George S. Ohm, who discovered this law of electrical flow. An "ohm" is the equivalent to the resistance of 251 feet of copper wire about the size of a wire hair-pin. A steel wire of the same size and length would have the resistance of about seven "ohms."

The heat developed in any conductor with a given amount of current flowing through it depends upon this "resistance." If one part of the circuit has a higher resistance than another the most heat will be generated there. It is in the circuit of large low-resistance copper wires a small piece of fine wire of platinum wire, each having a very high resistance, is introduced, a current which will barely warm the copper wire will heat the loop of platinum wire white hot. This arrangement is used to explode torpedoes and blasts of submarine torpedoes.

Heat is developed everywhere in the circuit by the flow of electricity. If the circuit is broken a bright spark is noticed. This is caused by the sudden heating of the last particles of metal and results in the heating of an infinitesimal puff of metallic vapor formed by the volatilization of the metal.

Upon this very principle all the electrical heating devices of today are constructed. Take for instance the electric chafing dish. Without the above explanation it is difficult for the layman to understand where the heat comes from which cooks the fudge or the wafers. One can see the particles of metal being heated, but the heat is not visible. The heat is the contents of the pan are bubbling away, emitting clouds of steam.

When the flexible cord is connected to the electric light socket and the current turned on, the electricity flows down the wire in the cord to the resistance coil concealed in the bottom of the chafing dish. This "resistance" usually of German silver wire does not allow the current to pass readily, causing the wire to get white hot. The device is supplied with two heat, meaning that the amount of current flowing through the resistance can be increased thereby making the pan hotter. The "heating unit" in the chafing dish is entirely concealed and there is not the slightest danger of setting fire to anything when the utensil is in operation.

Public Supporting Graft Prosecution

The immense audience which assembled in the grand hall last night for the purpose of listening to address from prominent citizens on the subject of the cold-blooded attempt to murder Prosecuting Attorney Francis J. Heney, and incidentally to give assurance that there would be no relaxation of the effort to bring adequate punishment to the grafters, served the double purpose of showing that San Francisco is an orderly community which cannot be moved to lawlessness by excitement, and that its citizens are thoroughly determined that the criminals who have robbed the city and debauched its officials shall receive their just deserts.

There were some who may have deemed the call for the meeting ill advised because of the existence of the profound horror and indignation expressed by the murderous assault upon the public prosecutor, but those who called it knew the temper of the people and that they could be depended upon, while urging the enforcement of the law upon criminals, to themselves receive the law.

The result of the meeting will be to carry conviction to the outside world that San Francisco is as united in its determination to bring its municipal grafters to justice, and to establish a better order of things, as it was a year ago when it gave an overwhelming majority at the polls to the men who are now administering its affairs. The enthusiasm shown and the resolutions adopted are a complete answer to the pessimistic and mischievous assertions that the people are tiring of the graft prosecution, and will help strengthen its efforts to bring the malfeasors to justice.

Meantime the community has occasion to rejoice that the murderous attack which gave occasion for the meeting has happily proved unsuccessful and that there is every prospect that the intended victim will live to make good his declaration that he will prosecute the cases of the grafters to a successful conclusion.—San Francisco Chronicle.

front of the footlights to make a speech, and the big lump comes up, everybody soon knows it is there."

Patsy Donovan, who led the Dodgers for the past three seasons, has been let out. President Charles Ebbets was not satisfied with the work of the Brooklyn leader. Rumor has it that Ebbets is sweet on Bill Dahlen, the former Giant, who is in none too good favor with Joe Kelley, manager of the Dodgers, of which crew "Red Bill" is a member. It is also said that the Brooklyn magnate has hopes that the National Commission will reinstate Jimmie Schling, in which event the latter will be given control of the Superbas.—New York American.

Danderine

EVERYBODY CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR NOW, and they don't have to wait weeks and months for results either. You will notice marked improvement after the very first application.

Danderine is quickly and thoroughly absorbed by the scalp and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities. It is pleasant and easy to use—simply apply it to the scalp and hair once a day until the hair begins to grow, then two or three times a week till desired results are obtained.

A lady from California writes in substance as follows: "I have been using your wonderful hair tonic for several months and all I can now say is that it has made my hair grow so fast that it is over 8 inches around."

Another from New Jersey: "After using sixth bottle I am happy to say that I have as nice a head of hair as anyone in New Jersey."

This Great Hair-Growing Remedy can now be had at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Free To show how quickly Danderine acts we will return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

MR. GOLIGHTLY'S CHESS LESSON

By LONNE STEVENS.

Now, dear, I'll teach you how to play chess," said Mr. Golightly, as he settled himself for the evening. "Get the board and men, and you may bring my pipe too."

"It's so nice of you to be willing to show me!"

"Of course, my dear, you know it is a man's game—it really takes practice to play a good game of chess. I hope you can master it enough to make a game interesting to me some time."

"Yes, dear," answered his wife meekly.

"Now, Mrs. Golightly, you can't play chess with the board at an angle of forty-five degrees."

"Fahrenheit. Get a higher chair and put your mind on the game."

"I like this rocker; it's comfortable."

"It's against all rules of chess to keep giggling."

"I'll get a book on my lap. I've been studying the rules, but I didn't see anything about giggling."

Here the book slipped and the board was only saved by the quick action of Mr. Golightly.

"If you think this is a 'school' the chutes you are mistaken," he said severely. "My idea is to teach you chess—if possible."

"I'll get a higher chair," she said, assuming the expression of an early Christian martyr. "I learned how to get the men out of the book, only I want to play with the white ones."

"Cause I've been practicing with them."

"What has the color to do with the game? Now I move—so."

"Perfect silence for a few minutes."

"It's your move, dear," said Mrs. Golightly.

"Don't I know it? A man has to stop to think; he doesn't play any old thing. This isn't 'give away.'"

"Then why do you put your castle where I can take it?"

"Because I was trying to show you the game, and I have to talk so much."

"I thought you said it required silence."

"It does, unless you are playing with a woman." Mrs. Golightly started to take one of her men.

"Oh, wait, I haven't taken my fingers off yet. I don't think I'll move it there. I'll move here and check your king."

"You're nice, only you can't jump across the board that way. Check to your queen."

"Too bad. I must take your queen. I guess you didn't see my bishop. Do you want me to take it?"

"I don't play the lady act. If I hadn't been talking to you I should not have moved there."

Mrs. Golightly swept the queen from the board, and left two of his men in jeopardy.

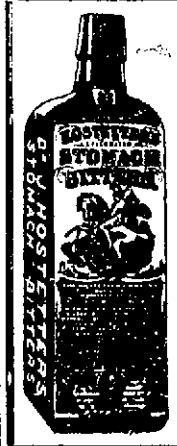

"Ah! I was watching your slide."

"I should think you'd watch your own. I do. It isn't your move."

"Yes, it is."

"No, you moved, and I took your queen and then you."

VISALIA PRESBYTERIANS CLASH OVER NEW PASTOR'S ORDINATION

MEMBERS, FORBIDDEN THE CHURCH, DESTROY EXPULSION NOTICE, COMMITTING MISDEMEANOR—"UNPLEASANTNESS" WAXES HOT.

VISALIA, Nov. 21.—There is more trouble at the Presbyterian church in this city, the latest "unpleasantness" being the posting of a notice on the church door this morning by T. E. Clark, a local attorney, who has been active in behalf of the Cumberland Presbyterian branch in past disagreements, notifying all members of the Presbyterian body and adherents to keep out. The trouble came to a head as a result of the election of C. E. Clark to be pastor of the church, his ordination to take place tomorrow.

The notice posted by Clark was as follows:

Notice. Notice is hereby given that, under the direction and authority of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, I have this day closed this house and locked the door thereof against the members and officers of the said Presbyterian church, U. S. A., and all persons acting in concert with that denomination are hereby expressly forbidden to enter or occupy this church for any purposes whatever. The same is the property of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and under the authority of the said Presbyterian church, I hold the keys and control thereof for the following:

SELLING COMMITTEE TO KINGS PAKCERS

Hanford Raisin Men issue Invitations Independently.

Operators Asked to Meet Here Monday, With Fairweather Selling Committee.

HANFORD, Nov. 21.—The local selling committee of the raisin men held a meeting this afternoon in this city. It was resolved by them to close the pool in Kings county at 12 midnight, Wednesday, November 25th. The following resolution was also passed: "Resolved, That the Kings county raisin packers be by this notice and by a personal invitation, invited to meet with the Kings county selling committee of the Fairweather raisin pool, when it meets with the Fresno committee and packers in Fresno, Monday forenoon, November 23rd."

M. S. Nunez appeared in Justice Ferguson's court today to answer to charges of attempting to shoot B. Martelli. The trouble which led to the case began some time past, but culminated about ten days ago, when Mr. Nunez attempted to drive Martelli's new automobile off of the Nunez ranch. It is alleged that Martelli became enraged and tried to kill Nunez. The latter admitted driving a new for self-protection. Mr. Nunez pleaded not guilty and his request for a jury trial was granted.

Victor Tandy, chauffeur for L. A. Nunez of Linton, was today fined $25 by City Recorder J. M. Camp. Tandy's offense consisted in driving an automobile on an eighth street sidewalk last Wednesday night.

The Hanford Union High school football team was defeated in the second game of the season at Bakersfield this afternoon. The Hanford team showed considerable improvement, but Bakersfield's swift line proved an obstacle too great to be overcome. Following is Hanford's lineup: George Murray, center; Ward Badger, right guard; Hinkley left guard; Frank Epler, right tackle; Wm. Gardner, left tackle; Edward Gribb, left end; Russell Taylor, quarter back; Frank Buckner, full back; Leroy Newport, right half back; Vernal Bowman, left half back; Koenigsen, Boyd and Loggitt, substitutes.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21.—Miss Laura Grace Dillon of Lempore, Kings county, did not appear before the State Board of Education today to make any defense to the charges that she had obtained a California high school diploma under false pretenses and by means of forged credentials of graduation from Eastern colleges. The board revoked the teacher's license.

MOTORCYCLIST RUNS A LUMBER TEAM DOWN

John Allen Seriously Injured in Queer Accident.

Selma High School Literary Society Gives Highly Enjoyable Entertainment.

SELMA, Nov. 21.—John Allen of this city was seriously hurt in a collision of his motorcycle with a four horse team on North McCall avenue Thursday evening. Mr. Allen was returning home from his day's work, and was having some trouble with his motor. He had leaned over to ascertain the cause and had no intimation of danger until he felt himself hurled against the leaders of the team, which was hauling a heavy load of lumber. He was thrown beneath the wagon but drew himself from before the wheels in time to prevent a fatality. The team became frightened at the motor, which was chugging furiously beneath their heels. Kicking themselves free from the wagon, they took to the road and were not found until the next day at noon.

Mr. Allen was taken to a physician, who dressed his wounds. His recovery seems assured.

The literary society of the Selma High school gave its first entertainment for the year in the high school assembly hall Friday evening. The hall was crowded with parents and friends of the pupils, a number having to stand throughout the program. The exercises were opened with a song by the school, led by Miss Edna C. Monroe.

The relative value to the world of the athletic and the practical man was discussed by Miss Hope Pinkley and George East in the form of a debate.

Miss Lena Schreck sang in a pleasing manner "My Dainty Dorothea." She was accompanied by Miss Shirley Sweney.

Miss Inez Ludington gave a comic recitation, which was followed by a piano duet by Misses Roberta Sawrie and Melis Gordon.

Lewis Jacobsen, the president of the society, then read the "Magnet," and the program was concluded with a cantata entitled "The Quilting Bee."

MODESTO CITY TRUSTEES AND PROMOTERS AGREE

Franchise to Be Granted Valley Railway on Ninth Street.

State Board of Health Objects to Sewage Disposal of Town.

MODESTO, Nov. 21.—After a long consultation between the Modesto City Trustees and the promoters and backers of the San Joaquin Valley railway, an agreement has been reached in regard to the granting of a franchise to the application of the railway company will be granted at the next meeting of the board. The road will enter the city on Ninth street, paralleling the Southern Pacific railway, and the hauling of freight will be restricted to the hours between midnight and 6 a. m. The road already has a franchise in the city of Stockton and rights of way to Modesto, and is only awaiting the securing of the Modesto franchise before beginning actual construction work.

The city of Modesto and the State Board of Health are at odds over the disposal of the Modesto sewage. At present this sewage is turned into the Tuolumne river and the state health board claims that this is dangerous to the health of humans and cattle, which use the waters of the stream below this city. The city trustees of this city are not violating the state law in regard to this sewage, as the water is not used by humans below this city and only by cattle at a sufficient distance from the mouth of the sewer to permit the water to purify itself. It is likely that an investigation will be made to ascertain how far the water flows from the mouth of the sewer before purifying itself.

The annual Stanislaus County Teachers' institute will be held in this city next week and an excellent and instructive program has been arranged. Among the speakers will be the state superintendent of public instruction, and some of the leading instructors from Berkeley and Stanford. The Modesto Woman's club will tender the teachers a reception on Monday evening.

Chalmers-Detroit Forty Touring Car

(Formerly Thomas-Detroit Forty.)

Price $2,750 f. o. b. Detroit

Practically the only change we have made in the "Forty" for 1909 is in the spring construction—to make the car ride more easily. We have adopted the three-quarter elliptic rear springs used on nearly every foreign car of prominence. This improvement, coupled with the light weight of our car, makes the 1909 Chalmers-Detroit Forty the easiest riding automobile made, at any price.

For 1909 the same strong, light, four-cylinder, 40 h. p. motor is used as on the 1908 Forty. The hardest kind of service in the past has failed to develop a single weakness in this motor.

Such important features as transmission, clutch, ignition system, frame, control and running gear, remain practically unchanged. Heat-treated alloy steel is used exclusively throughout the driving mechanism and in the axles.

All brakes have been materially increased in size and efficiency. The brakes are lined with "Thermoid," a lining which our tests have shown to be the most durable.

In the 1909 "Forty" touring car a monogram panel has been added on the tonneau door. Slight changes have been made in the form of mud guard.

In the runabout the rear mud-guards have been turned up instead of down. The standard single and double rumble seats are still furnished.

The wonderful series of victories won by the "Forty" during the past season, and the uniformly satisfactory service it has given, have made this car the leader among medium priced light weight cars.

We have these cars in stock and can make immediate delivery.

Thanks to the Fresno Public

We wish to thank the hundreds and hundreds of people who attended and made purchases at our big clothing sale which ended last night.

We were glad to see the people of this community so readily appreciate the past reputation of this store.

Our policy has always been to treat the people honestly and to make no misrepresentations.

This was our policy before the sale—this was our policy during the sale—and this will be our policy hereafter.

Our store will be open bright and early Monday morning, ready to do business in the regular old way.

Again we thank the public for their attendance at this sale.

Respectfully,

numbers 1. It is said by critics that "The Hooneymanners" is the strongest musical production on the road this year and that as a play pure and simple it has few rivals in literature. George Cohan's sparkling, happy-go-lucky, breezy, confident young America and his ideals are the ideals of the men and women who do things and are happy about it. Scores of Cohan phrases have been added to the current speech. "I've heard all over the world. In 'The Hooneymanners' there are such song hits as "Kiki Days," "I'll Be There in the Public Square," "I'm a Popular Man," "In a One Night Stand" and "Make a Lot of Noise and Carry a Big Sign." The plot is told in The plot is laid in the town of Tigrisville, Vermont, and Hoyt never writes anything whose satire approaches the genial dissemination of rural village types in "The Hooneymanners." It is a mélange of the best of the current and the old, and the tale is fascinating. In the classiest cast are such prime favorites as Wm. Dunlap, Walter Chester, Daniel Sullivan, Jack London, Thomas A. Hearn, William Stanger, Annie Sullivan, Fernand, and the new comedians and Maxine Phillips. The costumes and staging are magnificent.

fight the negro carpet-bagger regime. Many of the old South customs were retained by the South Carolina Klan. The cross of St. Andrew was emblazoned on the robes of every member, and the members were pledged to climb the mountain top to maintain the order for the Klan to strike. These clannism comprised the best citizens of the communities in which they lived. They were God-fearing, honest men and their purpose was not to inflict suffering but to restore peace and order to the devastated and impoverished South. No more thrilling picture has ever been devised by the dramatist than that of the Ku Klux Klan in "The Clansman" as it will be seen at the Barton tomorrow night.

The Flaming Arrow.

The Barton will present next Wednesday evening Lincoln J. Carter's sensational drama, "The Flaming Arrow." As the title would indicate the play deals with the events that occurred on the western plains and the Rocky mountains. It is not as blood-thirsty as the "Clansman" and is full of pathos, deep heart interest, adventure and side-splitting bursts of laughter which relieve the more serious plot of the story. The play is typically a border drama and exploits Indians, cowboys, but is without said to be one of the most moral and instructive dramas since it was introduced. It is claimed that the scenery employed in this production is of sur-

James Corbett Coming.

"Facing the Music," with James J. Corbett in the stellar role, supported by a whole host of comedians, will be presented at the Barton next Saturday evening by H. H. Frazee for the first time. It is a farce comedy in three acts, by James Henry Darnley, who originally wrote the piece for Henry Ed. Dixey, who placed the work in a hotel here during its two long runs at the Madison Square theater, New York, and Powers theater, Chicago, where the public and critics declared it to be a highly entertaining comedy.

The story of the piece can be briefly told:

In a Kensington flat there lived two John Smiths, one a curate and the other a sportsman, both of them and the latter sportsman inclined young man with a liking for the race track. Both Smiths were married to young and attractive women, and as both wives have been out of town and the curate Smith has engaged a Kensington flat during the absence of his wife, the sportsman's return unexpected to one of them late at night during a heavy fog, and is shown into the wrong Smith's flat, the complications can better be imagined than described. With the aid of an actress and a detective everyone becomes involved in a down-to-down and down-to-down affair that keeps the audience in a state of hilarity.

DEPARTMENT 45 LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Wagenknecht & Kemper are not following the usual rule of down to earth, practical matings in keeping with the tradition in New York until the outlying cities tire of hearing of its metropolitan success before it reaches their home cities. The entire New York and Chicago press stamped "Paid in Full" as a great play. Sam H. Davis, a prolific critic, wrote of Broadway in the starting of his review, I said: "Paid in Full" is the season's sensational find" and Action Days of the New York Evening Sun wrote, "It is the biggest dramatic hit of an age." The play is the most successful of the post-war treatise of incidents in the lives of everyday folk. "Paid in Full" is a play of gripping qualities and those who see it are its most enthusiastic advance agents. There has been an unusual demand for seats and the first night was the first "Paid in Full" was sold out here by one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences of the

by the comedian played by the man, who is ten years its actual age. This is where the young man just out of college, shows his ability as a humorist. He returns the $20,000 that he borrowed and marries the girl; but not until after he has had a most strenuous time of it. The most interesting thing that has been the most active man in the community. In addition to this love romance there are three similar affairs going on at the same time.

Every part in the play is said to be a distinct characterization and in M. Ade's hands, the vein.

INTERVIEW

A HOT ONE

"Authentic" Account of the Kaiser's Utterances.

Great Britain Decadent and in Alliance With the Yellow Peril.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—What purports to be an "absolutely accurate and authentic synopsis" of the interview obtained from Emperor William of Germany by Dr. William Bayard Hale and subsequently withdrawn just as it was about to appear in the Century magazine, is printed by the World today. The World declares that the article, as originally written was submitted to Dr. Hale and that it appears today "as changed by Dr. Hale."

The interview is said to have taken place on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern off Bergen, Norway, while Dr. Hale was the emperor's guest. The World summarizes the main points of the emperor's interview as follows:

"That King Edward of Great Britain had been humiliating him for more than two years and that he was exasperated, that Germany was the paramount power in all Europe and that England was trying to neutralize that power."

"That he held France in the hollow of his hand, and that Russia was of no account since the disastrous war she had with Japan."

"That if the pan-European war which had been so much talked of was inevitable, the sooner it came the better it would be for him, for he was ready and was tired of the suspense."

England a Decadent Nation.

"That Great Britain had been a decadent nation ever since her victory over the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, because hers was an unrighteous, un-Godly cause and Divine judgment was bound eventually to overtake the powerful nation that waged such a war."

"That the Anglo-Japanese alliance was an iniquitous alliance against all the white races, England proving absolutely her faithlessness as a Christian nation; that Japan was honeycombing India with sedition and flooding it with spies, while professing openly to be England's friend and ally."

"That the only way to counteract this alliance was for Germany and America to act together at an early date, or America would have to fight the Japanese in ten months."

"That in the event of a great war, England would lose many of her colonies, especially in the Pacific, and that all he would take for Germany would be Egypt, though he would liberate the Holy Land from the yoke of the infidel, presumably meaning the Sultan."

Counted on Airships.

"That the perfecting of the Zeppelin dirigible balloon would give Germany a powerful advantage in war and she was ready to make use of it to the fullest extent."

The World declares that Emperor William knew when he made these statements that Dr. Hale was an American newspaper man and magazine writer, but that nevertheless the statements were made without reservation and that no secrecy was imposed. The interview had been formally arranged through the German foreign office, it is said, and that at the conclusion of the interview Dr. Hale returned to Berlin and told the officials of the foreign office of the success he had had.

"They forbade him to publish it," the World story continues.

"Then they explained to him at some length that even a hint at possibilities so serious, coming from one who had been the emperor's guest, might throw the whole world into the most disastrous war of all times. The attitude of these officials is said to have been that the emperor was irresponsible when he gave way to such fits of temper."

Copy Was Butchered.

It is said that Dr. Hale obeyed the instructions of the foreign office in the preparation of his interview, but later when the manuscript was submitted to the higher officials they "are said to have so butchered it that little of what was worth while was left."

It was in this formal form, according to the World, that the article was accepted by the Century. It was practically ready for publication when the request came from Berlin that even the interview in its revised form be suppressed. Then the electrotypes and all copies of the interview were destroyed before the public announcement that the interview had been withdrawn was made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Dr. William Bayard Hale today issued the following statement:

"I repudiate absolutely the story which the New York World this morning published purposing to tell what passed at my audience with the German emperor. It is pure fabrication from beginning to end, and I so declared to the World reporter who showed it to me before publication."

PRINCE CHUN WILL BE A REAL RULER

Edict of Regent Shows That He Purposes to Be Unhampered
By New Empress Dowager.

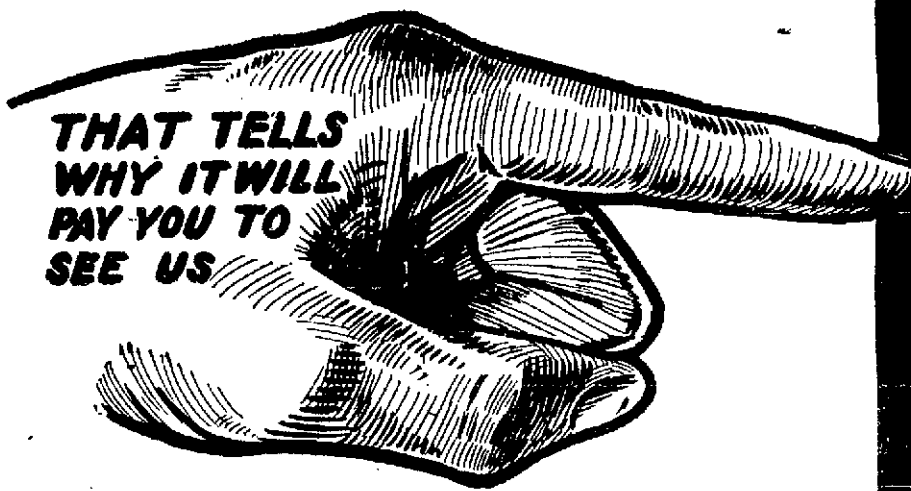

PEKIN, Nov. 21.—It is becoming increasingly evident that Prince Chun, the regent, is taking matters of government into his own hands and that he resents any interference from the dowager empress Xehonala or the members of the grand council.

A vigorous worded edict issued by the regent today in the name of the emperor, sets forth that his authority was received from the late dowager empress, and commands obedience to him. It says in part:

"All important edicts are ordered to give a greater degree of obedience than others; this is for the effect of the example. Disobeying princes and officials will be dealt with without leniency. Our purpose in this is to fulfill the command of the late dowager empress and to satisfy the people."

The wording of this edict indicates a desire of dissonance in the imperial family and the disposition to transfer into his own hands is indicated by other reports from the palace regarding the prince regent.

That is a record of achievement that speaks for itself. It is not the result of accident but due to constant, earnest effort and the adoption and execution of up-to-date methods of doing business. The above record is one of actual, bona-fide sales, made largely during the summer months, the months that many think must of necessity be "dull" months during which a "take it easy" policy must prevail.

We do not know nor recognize "dull periods," nor are we ever going to cultivate the habit. We were "on the job" all summer just as actively and energetically as at any other time. We are at it now harder than ever. It pays us to be busy as you see and our energetic way of doing business is the reason why it will always pay you to see us for lands, houses and lots.

Buyers seek our office because we have the biggest and best lists, can fill all land wants and deliver the goods. Sellers seek us because they know that our office is the one most sought by buyers.

Another reason for our success is that we believe in publicity. We believe in spending money liberally in a judicious manner in telling the public in a forceful and attractive way what we have for sale. We are not confining our publicity service to Fresno alone. We have just established an office at Los Angeles for the sole purpose of seeking buyers for Fresno county lands. It is at 214 Mercantile Place. It is supplied with every facility for giving enquirers thorough and reliable information about Fresno county.

All property listed in our home office is also listed in our Los Angeles office. Most important of all we are advertising extensively in Los Angeles papers. We do not confine our advertising to mere announcements of our offerings. We give in every ad many facts and figures concerning Fresno county's wealth producing lands.

We want you to come to us whether you wish to buy or sell. You will always want to transact your land business through our office after dealing with us once. We give a "square deal" to all. Your interests are our interests, your satisfaction our success.

Republican Ads Pay! WHY?

Old Thanksgiving.
Oh, the wind is moaning lonesome as It's creeping in to and fro
Through the branches of the trees
So bleak and bare;
And the sky looks kinder threatening
And there's just a hint of snow
And November's writ his name
Most everywhere.
But the bright red fire's a-ringing
Up the big brick chimney flue,
And the old house kinder wears a Happy grin;
What's the odds about the weather
When the loved ones are together,
And it's jolly old Thanksgiving
Come again!

There's a turkey full of stuffin' that's
A treat for the eye
There's a puddin' that won't hold Another plum;
There's celery and there's cranberry sass,
There's mince and pumpkin pie,
All settin' there a-hollerin' ter yer Come!
And here's mother, who's been countin'
Up the days for weeks and weeks And me a feelin' young as twenty-four,
And there's welcome running over, just Like dew drips off the clover,
For it's jolly old Thanksgiving
Come more!

Oh, it's good to be a child ag'in, if Only once a year!
It's good to have the children round
The place
It brings yer back to the old sweet days
In mem'ry's bliss,
And kinder smooths the wrinkles
From yer face.
Our boys and girls are back at home
With children of their own,
So let the fun and frolic now begin;
We cheer our hearts as cheery, though
Our eyes, maybe, are tears,
For it's blessed old Thanksgiving
Come ag'in!

—Joe Lincoln.
Is there a day in the history of our country that means more to the patriotic American than Thanksgiving Day? It is as much of a national holiday as Fourth of July and as such should be celebrated. How differ-ently do we celebrate the event from the manner that it was observed by our forefathers in dear old New England!

Nowadays, it means a conventional dinner served in a very modern fashion at the home of some relative or friends or perhaps in a brilliantly lighted restaurant. There is possibly a football game or a matinee or some other modern form of diversion which helps to pass the afternoon.
All idea of the old fashioned Thanksgiving seems to have been forgotten, especially in the West where "new"
things and "new" customs seem to have almost blotted out the memory of the old fashioned Thanksgiving in the country at "grandmother's." What visions the picture conjures up of a Thanksgiving spent in the country, before the frost is fairly off the ground everybody is ready to start on the several hours' drive that brings you to the country home. At the gate to give you a Thanksgiving welcome is "grandmother," wearing a smile of welcome that warms your heart and you run to the arms that are flung open to you.

There is no "don't" in grandmother's house. You feel free to eat your fill, play your fill and when night comes to curl up beside the glowing embers on the hearth and fall to sleep, dreaming dreams of huge turkeys stalking about you, and snacking your lips at remembrances of savory pies and plum puddings. It is a pleasant picture to contemplate and fills one's heart with longing for the old fashioned Thanksgiving.

With college boys and girls coming home this week and other Thanksgiving visitors, there are to be numerous happy family reunions, besides a number of parties especially among the younger set. With a few exceptions, the college and high school set are to have a monopoly on the week's revelry.

The two theatrical attractions of the week, tomorrow night and Thanksgiving night, are to be society events,
a number of box and loge parties having been planned for each.
Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shepherd are to entertain at a box party at "The Cinnamon."
A Thanksgiving wedding of interest will occur at St. James' church and will unite Miss Julia Cole of this city and W. B. Lane of Sacramento.

The Thanksgiving football game will be followed by a dance at Einstein hall given by the local high school to the visiting Berkeley team.

On Friday evening the members of the Delta Iota Chi sorority will entertain their friends at the home of Misses Helen and Alice Miller.

Saturday evening the young people will again make merry at a jolly quadrille party given by Mrs. M. B.
Harris and Miss Marguerite Harris for their house guest, Miss Rita Keene of Berkeley, who will pay them a visit.

It's coming! What's coming? "Tag day" and you'll all be "it." Instead of "Mother" put a rose on me! It will be "Come and put a tag on me!"

The game is the latest craze swept through our Eastern cities and has just now reached us, having first swept San Francisco, Los Angeles and Oakland. Fresno has gotten its hand and the lucky cause which is to benefit
it is the Young Women's Christian Association. And what more worthy philanthropy? A few noble, self-sacrificing women have been struggling hard with the problem of its support for the past four or five years with no prospect of its speedy solution—
when, happy thought, "tag day" presented itself as a veritable Moses to lead them out of their wilderness of difficulties. And it is "up" to us to see that they are not disappointed.

The game is one which we can all play—young and old, men, women and children. Let the latter bring their pennies, nickels and dimes and the older ones their dimes and dollars, all going with the price of helping to build that much needed home for our homeless girls, which will also be an honor and pride of our city.

The Y. M. C. A. some years ago was put upon a paying basis and is a calculable benefit to man, young men, and now it is the young women's turn, and only those who have had experience with the work can fully realize how much it is needed. The young girl who comes to our city a stranger can here find friends and home. She can here find office and store can find a girl from office and rest within find an hour of respite and rest within find a walk and pleasant hours of recreation in the evening. While in case of sickness she will have kindness and care. So let us all join in like one big happy family and give a substantial aid Thanksgiving present to our little sisters who are not so blest as ourselves.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. G. Saunders and their little daughter, Vina, leave for the East, early part of next week for the East.
Mr. Saunders' business interests demand his presence in Iowa and for the present they will reside in their home
there, hoping to return to California
by spring. In their absence their home on Taylor street will be occupied by the George C. Roediger, who have leased it for the winter.

Mrs. Dominique F. Verdental of New York City will arrive on Wednesday
on a visit to her daughters, Mrs. William Forsyth and Mrs. Lee L. Gray.
Towards the holiday season Mr. Ver-dental is expected to join his wife in her California visit.

Miss Eusebia Miller entertained
very delightfully yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Ward Blackler Minnion of Merced. Miss Miller was one of the attractive maids at the Kennedy-Minturn wedding about a month ago and as she was absent from town
previous to the wedding day she deferred her entertainment for this popular bride until after the wedding.

The golden and white chrysanthemums with autumn leaves combined to enhance the beauty of the spacious apartments of the Miller home. Five hundred was the entertainment of the afternoon, the pretty cards bearing the monogram in gold of the guest of honor, Miss Zoe Eden won the dainty prize for high score, while the convivial gift for which all the other guests cut fell to Miss Lillian Dunn.
Miss Minturn was looking particularly radiant and beautiful in one of her lovely tulle-trimmed gowns of pale blue brocade, with which she wears a long cloth cape of the same shade and a large white picture hat.

Those asked to meet Mrs. Minturn on this happy occasion included Miss Ethel Kennedy, Mrs. W. W. Craycroft,

Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Maupin and Mr.

Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Maxfield.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at half past 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning in St.
John's Catholic church, when Miss May Anna Phillips became the bride of John P. McSherry. Both young people are exceedingly prominent in Catholic circles so naturally their wedding was of widespread interest. Rev.
Messinger McCarthy, head the marriage service and officiated at the high nuptial mass.

One especially notable feature of the wedding was the music of the nuptial mass sung by a choir composed of the Misses Katherine and Marguerite Pallile, Mr. Soljen Anthony and Maurice Rothmeyer. They sang the Agnus Dei and Gloria from St. Peter's Mass and Miss Katherine Ballis sang the beautiful Dudley Buck Ave Maria. Miss Sprengle presided at the organ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Phillips of this city and has lived here for about three years. She is a fascinating girl and much beloved by all who know her. In her wedding gown of handsome pearl white satin
she was especially lovely, her blonde beauty being heightened by the softness of the long tulle veil, which enveloped her slender figure. She carried an arm bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by Miss Anna McSherry, the groom's sister, who was becomingly gowned in pale blue messaline and carried white carnations. The bride's brother, James Phillips, supported the groom, John Hirshingham and B. A. Harvey acted as ushers.

After the church service, there was a charming little wedding breakfast served at the new home of the bride and groom at 322 Taylor street. Mrs.
Charles E. Phillips presiding over the arrangements. The table was beautifully decorated in yellow chrysanthemums and covers were laid for about twenty guests, relatives and friends of the young couple. The bridegroom is a well known young business man of this city, holding a trusted position with the Domestic Emulsion company.

A Los Angeles wedding of Wednesday in which many Fresnoans will be interested is noted as follows: The Los Angeles Times has just published
the marriage of Mrs. L. B. Cary of West Twenty-first street, who was married last evening to A. R. Kelly, a prominent young business man of Fresno, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. Collier, on Broadway. Mrs. Cary is a sister of Mrs. Kelly's. Mrs. Cary was a friend of the family. Miss McKean was a beautiful gown of white satin made empire and trimmed with Princess lace. Her bouquet was a cluster of lilies of the valley. In a becoming sister of pink satin, assisted as maid.
Her gown was made empire and she carried an arm bouquet of Cecil Brier roses. Dr. Thomas McKean stood with the groom. The decorations were in charge of Miss Kelly. Later pink flowers and lilies ferns. Later tea was served, after which Mr.
and Mrs. Kelly left for Tahiti, one of the South Sea Islands. They will make their home in Fresno.

Miss Lowell Swift will arrive early
this week on a visit to her mother, Mrs. L. P. Swift, over the Thanksgiving week end. Miss Swift is attending Huntington Hall, a fashionable girls school in Los Angeles.

The second assembly of the Echescholz club has been set for Friday evening, December 11, in Armory hall.
It is now known that this dance
would be deferred until the holidays
owing to "bad" night at the Soldiers club. The affair, however, has been postponed on account of the dance of the president, Mrs. L. P. Swift, in the East, so there will be nothing to interfere with the second Eche-scholz assembly on the date agreed upon.

The third assembly is to be as usual
on New Year's eve and will be a ball masque. It seems especially fitting that the holiday dance should be a masquerade affair. It has been quite two years since society has frolicked at this kind of dance. Consequently there is the liveliest interest being taken in the masquerade dance.

The January dance will include a prize
January dance will include a prize
gram a contest in which one out of ten of town who may be obtained for the occasion. Both these dances are being anticipated with the keenest joy.

Fresnoans are always interested in any news which concerns the stage life of that popular favorite, Maud Lillian Herr, in private life. Mrs. Frank Moulton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton G. Berry. Since leaving California last year the Moultons have been in New York City preparing for a vaudeville sketch which they have put on in one of the big New York vaudeville theaters with the greatest success. From personal information received, as well as through press notices, their success was instantaneous,
their act being featured as the chief attraction of the bill. The pair and the audience enjoyed a marvelously beautiful satiric director's robe,

Mrs. B. F. Shepherd

her masses of puffs and coils of golden brown hair piled high on her head in the latest classic mode. Mr. Moulton
is presented as a fair dresser, and it is his task to direct the fair Maud Lillian of all her beautiful puffs and coils. It requires no small amount of courage for a beauty in this bold fashion, but evidently the acknowledged beauty and charm of Mrs. Moulton stands the test, for she has made a tremendous hit as has also Mr. Moulton in the role of the hair dresser. Into the skirt is introduced a grand opera
dance which is seriously humorous, besides some bright dialogue and an additional solo for Mrs. Moulton. They expect to be in New York all winter.

Speaking of vaudeville, it will be of interest to many Fresnoans to know of the success in New York of Mrs. Grace Reichman, formerly of this city. The daughter of the late John Reichman and Mrs. Reichman, formerly of this city, will be very pleasantly remembered in this city. Mrs. Reichman, after leaving Fresno, married a San Francisco man and later they moved to New York.
Here Mrs. Reichman went on the stage and attained considerable success in vaudeville. Later she retired to accept the management of vaudeville sketches and now her time is fully occupied in playing vaudeville and other sketches and acting these humorous parts. She is the mother of two handsome young sons, aged about 7 and 5 years respectively. These two sturdy lads have the care of a devoted grandmother, Mrs. Reichman, who is unceasing in her devotion to them.

Following appears some charming verses written by Fresno's gifted poetess, Mrs. Dora Curston, after hearing the opera of Tannhauser rendered by the Fresno Musical club. It sets forth, perhaps, as nothing else could, the appreciation felt of the splendid program presented. Mrs.
Curston's rare gift of expression has found no more beautiful subject upon which to comment than this magisterial opera of the immortal Wagner. The lines read thus:

Tannhauser.
"Telling of sin should and pardon granted."
From the turmoil and stress of common day,
I passed to the realm of an old romance.
"Oh come to these bowers" pealed soft
the lay
Of the "Siren" yelled from my mortal glance.
And I felt the lure that ensnared a
soul.
In the passionate plaint that "Venus"
sung,
"Come, my beloved!" how the sweet voice stole
On my listening heart, wonder then
it flung.
In those slumberous bowers of star-lit
glow,
Its witchery over the captive
soul.
Who, sunk in pleasure's dream of bliss
below,
In waking hour, found recompense
of ruth!
Three mads of sin, and passion's luring
power,

Up mountain steep he struggled ever on,
Till dawned for him, the "blessed meeting hour."
With fresh hymning from the "hall of song."

In spirit knelt I there, "by yonder siren."
When distant on my ear, rang won-derous sweet
"All hail to thee!" Then, in prayer
divine.

As one few kneeling at the "Virgin's" feet,
A voice immortal rose and held me
bound
In rapture, till I saw two souls ascend.

"Neath evening star, and heavenly Truth profound Its glorious "heavenly wrought!" and thus the end.

Miss Grace Shaver accompanied her sister, Mrs. Harvey Swift, to San Francisco this past week for a brief stay.

Miss Edith Ostrander is the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren F.
Forsey at their picturesque country
place near Kearney avenue.

The Thursday Night Shakespeare club will meet this week on Tuesday night instead of the regular night on account of Thanksgiving.

The wedding of B. E. Cronkhite, assistant city engineer, and Miss Perle Westfall of Mariposa was quietly celebrated last Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. K.
Westfall in Barrah, Mariposa county.
The young people are spending their honeymoon in Southern California and when they return will reside in one of the finest cottages in the famous
"honeymoon row."

The bridegroom's friends are having a bit of fun at his expense. It seems that in his haste to be on his way to claim his bride he left behind in a discarded coat pocket the velvet-wal-laced upon which to take his wedding trip.
A hurried telegram dispatched to a friend revealed this embarrassing truth. The roll of bills was found and deposited in the bank as it was then too late to be of service on the wedding journey. It is rather unkind to tell tales behind people's backs, especially when they are off on their honeymoon, but the society chronicler was not sworn to secrecy and the happy young pair will soon be on hand to explain for themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Cochran entertained on Thursday evening at a delightful bridge complimentary to an October bride couple, Mr. and Mrs.
Harry Scott Wilson.

The Modern Women's club met yesterday with Mrs. Robert Hargrove.
Preceding the club session Mrs. Hargrove entertained a half dozen friends at luncheon including Mrs. W. P. Miller of this city, who leads the club in Shakespeare study. This club is one of the most flourishing and active in the district and has for its presiding officer, Mrs. Hargrove, one of Ma-den's ablest and most cultured women. A systematic study of the "Macbeth" was concluded, the next study taken up being the Iliad and the Odyssey, which Mrs. Miller will give.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt have taken apartments for the winter in the St.
Andrew's apartments on J street.

Mrs. Frank Wyatt and Mrs. Burt
B. Lamkin have sent out cards for an afternoon reception on Thursday, December 10, at their home near the Sunnyside vineyard.

On Friday evening Miss Gertrude Swift will entertain some girl friends
in honor of her sister, Miss Lowell, who will be at home for the Thanksgiving holidays.

The "Pastime club" composed of a number of young business men of the city will give a dancing party on Tuesday evening in Einstein hall. E.
C. Curston is president of the club and has the arrangements of the affair in charge.

The young women of the Evangelical Circle of St. Paul's M. E. church are planning to give a charming evening on either December 3rd or 4th in the basement of the church. "The Lady of the Decoration" that fascinating literary story of Japan will be read by Miss Kate Daly and illustrated with a series of scenes from the book. Miss Hilary Schaeffer will assist Miss Daly.

A meeting on Tuesday at the home of Miss Prather on Abby street will divide the date and other matters relating to the entertainment.

Miss Julia Wellborn, who has been spending the past year with relatives in Fresno, left yesterday for her home in Texas. Miss Wellborn is a niece of J. J. Brown of West Park. She is an exceedingly bright, attractive girl, regret with which her friends will good bye showing the regard in which she is held. On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bowen at their home on White avenue asked about thirty relatives and friends in for a farewell gathering in Miss Wellborn's honor. A very merry evening was enjoyed by the guests in dancing and games, followed by a dainty supper.

This is the last gathering that will be possible in the Bowen home, for they are moving this week to a country place in West Park, which they have leased for a year or two and will give up their home in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lockie were pleasantly surprised at their home, 428 San Pablo avenue, Friday evening, by some neighbors and friends. The affair was in the nature of a farewell to Mr. Lockie having sold out his business interests in Fresno, intends removing to Oakland and starting in business there.

A "knowing" neighbor lured the Lockies to his home with the promise of chicken supper later, thus giving the guests time to arrive and conceal themselves in a darkened room.

An evening caller made the excuse for their return home where they were met with a tumultuous cry of surprise from the numerous guests. Mr. Cotton presented a handsome set glass bearing the name of the host and hostess
and friendship in which the host and hostess were held by Fresno friends and though regretting the separation all joined in wishing them success in their new venture.

Mr. Hiram Lockie, a brother, was also kindly remembered.
After a merry evening of games, refreshments were served.

The guests present with Mr. and Mrs. Lockie were Mr. and Mrs. Antony, Mr. and Mrs. Lorrain, Mr. and Mrs. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. C. H.

Cobb and son Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs.
Batterfield and son Earl, Mr. and Mrs.
Stone and son Frederick, Mr. and Mrs.
Ellithorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill, Mr.
and Mrs. Steger and son Dan, Mrs.
Kaiser, Harold and Lester Kaiser, Miss
Larson, Mrs. Tomlin, Mrs. A. J. Cobb,
Mr. Marks and two daughters, Miss Winnie and Violet, Mrs. Hiram Lockie.

A congenial group of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. William C.
Dow, Illinois avenue, on yesterday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. C. D. Smith, who has recently returned from Mil-egan and Mrs. Olive Maheson, a San Francisco visitor. The afternoon was spent in greetings and merry conversation over the tea cups. These present were Mrs. C. D. Smith, Mrs. Olive Maheson, Mrs. Minnie Elsie, Mrs. Ella Mordant, Mrs. Eliza Hagerty, Mrs.
C. K. Kirby Jr., Mrs. George C. Farr
of Clovis, Mrs. Daniel McCarthy, Miss Victoria Bohanla, Mrs. W. C. Dow.

Rev. Duncan Wallace officiated last evening at the wedding of Amos J.
Agar and Miss Lela Groote of this city.
The ceremony took place at half past
7 o'clock at the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

Later in the evening Rev. Wallace officiated at the marriage of Heli E.
Morgan, son of E. L. Morgan and Miss Jennie F. Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. Francis Bartlett. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother near Recreation Park, and was witnessed by the relatives of the young people and a few close friends.
Mr. and Mrs. Morgan will make their home at 139 Thelia street.

Jet Much in Vogue.
It is no longer reserved for the old. The youngest and gayest have embraced its use.

The old-time idea that jet was only for the blonde is no more.
For it has been discovered that dark hair is more effective in "traven" tangles.

All the favorite forms of hair ornaments come in jet—fillets, combs, barrettes, pins and ornaments of all kinds.

Dog collars come in links of solid jet. In this style and with a jet bead, strings of graduated jet beads
will also be much worn.

Smooth jet pendants will be worn
on silver or gold chains.
Purse chains and the new neck chain with tassels ends that about the neck are found in all its varied designs.

Embroidered Belt Finds Much Favor.
Because of the fashion for gaudy colors, the embroidered belt is the fashion of the moment.

It will be worn all winter with cloth coat suits as well as with indoor bustle frocks. It is made on them, or silk, or satin.

Liberty velvet is also used, but it should only be worn by the girl who has a really round waist.

White is used as the foundation,
but it cannot be worn except on gowns of white or pastel shades.

The design is strong and forceful;
nothing florid is used. The colors are scarlet, yellow, black, dull blue,
purple and gold, and brown.

The belt is lined, as it does not then pull into a string around the waist. It is run through a slender ornamental buckle in front.

Husbands Husbands are the natural product of most civilized countries. They are plentiful in most of the United States of America, being scarcest in Utah and Massachusetts, where each lady owns but a fraction of a husband or none at all.

Those owing to more than a twofold increase in husband are called out of the country. Although the best husbands in this country are acknowledged by experts to
be indigenous to the soil, the commanding
highest market prices are the imported varieties, because of their extensive labels. The raw brand brings the highest price.

The husband is a very wary and elusive animal, (feeling for safety) as the first noise like a skit to his life, of clubs,
offices and other men's eyes to his husband; but he may be caught only by an appearance of indifference on the part of the tempter, as he is constantly on guard by the strange nature who could remain immune to his charms; after which he may be easily caught when he is brought daylight, though a white night-light or moon-beam is preferable, in a trap composed of iron, talent, golden licks and flattery.

There is a tradition to the effect that the earliest husband catcher was a clumsy contrivance made of two hand-sawing attached to a spin-lace-wheel, decorated with home-made covers put up. The map of a street and a sealed in common sense.

Once secured with a matrimonial nettle tied in a diamond hitch, the husband
usually becomes quite tame and will eat
from the hand and when checks at will,
there are many who are called out of the country. Although the best husbands in this country are acknowledged by experts to
be indigenous to the soil, the commanding
highest market prices are the imported varieties, because of their exten-
highest price.

The American husband is called by its translational compere a beast of burden; to which he may very justly believe that the trans-Atlantic husband is a beast of prey, or otherwise, but always a beast,
and that it's a White Man's Burden, anyway. All of which proves that the highest grade husband has his permanent habitat in these United States of America.—From Success Magazine.

China Silk Makes Cheap Petticoats
China silk of any shade makes a most pretentious-looking petticoat for a comparatively modest outlay of money.

Such garments are made on the same principle as the sheath-fitting umbrella petticoats and are finished with knee flounces, or a wide band
of Valenciennes lace and silk,
the lace being first attached onto the material, which is then cut away from underneath.

At the hem a lace frilling saves the edge of the petticoat from wearing, and the flounce is attached to the petticoat proper under a broad lace heading,
through which a ribbon is run.

On some of these petticoats are set deep flounces of silver imitation Valenciennes lace, which launders wonderfully well.

If the skirt is of a dark color it may be flounced with dark net finished with a narrow silk ruching.

Such flounces do not soil readily,
and with care will last for several months.

RAISIN EATERS DROP FIRST GAME TO CHAMPS

Shay's Single, Duncan's Muff of an Easy Fly to Right and Chase's Two-Bagger Break Up Contest.

STOCKTON, 3; FRESNO, 2

Hal Chase was all to the cinder with a timely awat from his trusty willow in the seventh round of yesterday's exhibition contest at the Recreation Park ball yard between Cy Morving's five-time pennant winners in the California League and "Spider" Baum's Seedless Raisin crew, the fourth place club of the season just closed, and the team that donated the flag to Stockton.

ing card and that was sufficient to ~~do~~ credit to the ability of the press agent of the Fresno club and warrant a raise in salary for the individual.

Today Anson Mott will be switched back to third, while Blankenship will endeavor to show up Hal Chase at first. Smith and Kupa are to be in the lineup, and it is hoped that a few available man to go into right garden.

Frank Chance is billed to again do the umpiring stunt. The fact that Bert Maun's Brunswick's play at Vin-

With two on the bench in the seventh and the score board out in center garden showing the standing 2 to 1, with the Fresno club on the long end, the Shays broke the leather over second for a single.

"Tub" Lockett, who the fans thought was Bill Taft in disguise and kindly requested him to go off the field and get a drink, was the first to get on base.

He was followed by the Fresno pitcher, who was the first to get on base. The Fresno pitcher was the first to get on base. The Fresno pitcher was the first to get on base.

advantage, followed with a high fly into Ray Duncan's territory. The Dutchman had gobbled up three hard catches previous to that period. The fly was a big leaguer fresh from the Eastern bays. But Hackett's fly dwindled until it was a mere speck and after the fast little local toker and his mate had finished the opportunity was both Shny and Hackett were safe. Danny hot-footed around to third while Hackett beat the throw-in to second.

At this time, as Mel Chase showed the won by this method says Jimmy, "It seemed impossible to stop it, so I began thinking up some scheme to get the man. It usually occurs when there are two men out, then with a man on first and one on third, the former would start to steal second. If the pitcher threw to send the man in third would race home and the throw was too long for second to get him. Then the track of the second baseman running in behind the pitcher on such occasions and stopping the throw and shooting it back to the plate was started. This worked for awhile, but then

The danger in this act of sticking at the flag and as a result the man going from first to second would be safe at second. It seemed to me that there should be some means of getting one of these men and making the third out. So I thought of a plan of running the third, the fourth and fifth men, exposed at the meeting last night was a policy of organized lawlessness. They held that it would be foolishness to compete against the organization after such efforts had been extended to them. It was stated at the meeting that if an "outlaw" regime could be maintained without necessitating a coup, the organized law-

had been doing, and then if the runner at third did not try for home, I would relay the ball on to second in time to get the runner coming from first. To make this play, one can lose no time, and it would be almost impossible to turn about and throw the ball to the shortstop, who is covering second base. So with much practice, I was able to run in on such plays, thus holding the runner at third, and with a good throw from the catcher I could catch the ball and with the same movement pass it between my knees back to second base in time to nab the runner.

other runner. The butcher, of course, must make a good throw for the play to be a success. The ball should reach me just above the knees. Kilgus and myself have practiced for hours on this one play and we have it down now so that it generally works. Of course, the meeting, just what his reason for remaining away was, could not be learned last night.

Two arguments presented by Ex-Mayor Gardner and Morring were to the effect that "outlaw" ball gave opportunities for clearer playing and managers could be placed wherever they liked.

if the man on their tries to get home, I am there for a short, quick throw to the plate which should beat him. I think it is a spectacular play when properly carried out, and there is no doubt it is stopping a score and at the same time getting one of the men out."

CRORELL "PROF"
CAUSES ARRESTSInvestigation of Immigration Frauds Was Conducted Independent of Department.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 11.—Behind
the recent round up of alleged importers
of Japanese girls into the United States for immoral purposes which led to the arrest of government officers of Captain T. R. Gawley, three Japanese men and one Japanese woman is said to be Prof.
Jeremiah Jenks, head of the department of political and social economy in Cornell University, author and authority on subjects of governmental schemes and industrialism, member of the U. S. immigration commission and for the last year government sleuth who furnishes the head and brains in addition to the above arrests, seventeen other persons have been taken into custody on the same charges by local immigration officials since October 27th.

The operations of the immigration commission, which was appointed by congress to investigate immigration at home and abroad have been conducted with the greatest secrecy throughout the country. It has acted independently of the bureau of immigration and even the secretary of commerce and labor.

Congress appointed a fund for the use of the commission which consisted of three members of the senate, three members of the house and three citizens from private life. Prof. Jenks was selected as a citizen and he has proved to be the brains and working force of the commission in the United States, while other members have been abroad.

W. B. Wheeler of San Francisco was another member from private life, but he has since been appointed as assistant secretary of commerce and labor. In this manner Prof. Jenks has kept his operations secret from the immigration service, the secret service and the department of justice.

When the secret service of the immigration commission descended upon Seattle it was with the greatest secrecy.
A conference was held with United States District Attorney Elmer E. Todd and all other government officials were not out. The same methods were adopted here as in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco and other cities and along the Mexican border where the investigations have been conducted, wholesale arrests made and a number of government officials dismissed.

One of the commission's sleuth committees reached Seattle two months ago after Professor Jenks had put it in motion. It was headed by J. B.
Miller, holding a commission in the secret service and one Mary Blake,
the woman sleuth who was used to infiltrate herself into the good graces of Captain Gawley, and through whom it is ascertained that the Kawabuchi, S. Ishikawa, S. Minami and Mrs. H. Minami negotiated the deal to furnish her with six Japanese girls for the price of $300 each. Another Japanese badly wanted by the representatives of the immigration commission is one Kimura, of Spokan, with whom it is said part of the deal was arranged. Most of the girls alleged to have been contracted for were to have been sent to Kimura at Spokane. Kimura is married and he and his wife are said to control considerable property in the city.

At the hearing of all under arrest
before U. S. Commissioner Augustus Armstrong yesterday afternoon, the attorney for Gawley and the Japanese moved to have the complaints made more specific by naming the where they are now located. Commissioner Armstrong directed that the names be furnished, but overruled
the motion to tell where they were brought in or where they are now located. In giving the names of the Japanese girls the complaints were quashed and only two, Mutanaka Ochiko and Miyoshi O.

Hamilton Taylor, a secret service operative, was at the working end of the crusade in the South, and has visited Seattle. It is not known if he is in the city or where he is now.
Miller surrounding himself with such mystery that the other special detective employed by the government,
said to be four women and two men,
cannot be communicated with except through him. In some way it has been inferred by members of the commission that officers connected with the local immigration service are implemented or have been negligent.

While the commission's special have been at work for the past two months, the local immigration office has not been slow and the commission has been here that the district has already been cleaned up and in such a quiet manner that the commission itself did not know what was going on or what had been done.

Seventeen arrests have been made by the local immigration officials since October 27th.

corporated here this afternoon with a paying 7 per cent dividends. The object of the company is to deal in manufacture of fertilizer. The incorporators are

Had smells seem to have an affinity for West Park, citizens are now getting rid, by action carried up to superior court, of the sewer farm and its combination of villainous odors, the citizens of that section now face a fertilizer works.

fish pond of Dr. Williams' Fertilizer.
It has just been learned that a plant for the making of this product will shortly be in operation in West Park unless in some way prevented.

With the fight for the removal of the sewage works, and a lively appreciation of the condition of the West Park atmosphere at that time,
still green in their memories, the citizens have decided to protest, and possibly take legal measures to forestall
the fertilizer works at the church tomorrow at 2 p. m., for the purpose of determining what action is advisable, and taking legal steps if necessary. A general at-

Report on Controversies.
Two special committees reported a settlement of controversies referred to them. The Longshoremen and Seamen's union adjusted their differences with the Longshoremen and Electrical Workers agreed to a complete settlement of their controversy at the St. Louis convention
January 18, 1926.

The report of the committee on resolutions, in regard to the strike of the mechanics on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, was referred to the executive council with instructions to issue an appeal for financial assistance to all affiliated organizations.

The convention instructed the executive council to procure good legal advice for the purpose of drafting a bill for an old age pension, to be introduced either in the legislature of the several states or congress.

Asks Pardon for Poursin.
A resolution asking the president to pardon Jan Poursin, Russian political refugee, was adopted and an appeal for assistance in the defense of Alexander Villareal, Rivera and other alleged Mexican revolutionaries, was referred to the executive council to bring the cause before the proper authorities.

The only resolution discussed at length today was one introduced by Max Hays of the Typographical union demanding that work be provided for four million unemployed in the country. Objection was made to demanding assistance and to the statement that four million men were unemployed.

The resolution was adopted on an amended form in which it is urged upon the federal government and the several state and municipal governments that work be provided for the unemployed on roadways and waterways in the improvement of forests
and in every other way possible.

Several minor amendments were made to the constitution and at 7:10
the convention adjourned sine die.

FRESNO RAILROAD MEN
JOIN PROTECTIVE ORDERBranch of National Order of Railway Employees Installed—Has Insurance Feature.

Fresno Division No. 18 of the Order of Railway Employees was organized in Fresno yesterday, the eighteenth branch of the order to be organized on the coast since its inception a few years ago. Eighty-five charter members were initiated, and new officers were elected.

E. L. Hulse, the supreme organizer, and P. S. Lewis, the general field organizer, put the new Fresno members through the initiatory ceremonies. The order is fraternal in its character. The election of officers for this division yesterday resulted as follows: Charles E. Bundy, conductor; J. W. Voigt, engineer; E. C. Eby, secretary; Alan Cussen, treasurer; J. W. McFarling, Jr., yard master; Joseph E. Briscoe, master mechanic.

On Tuesday next these new officers will be installed. Supreme Secretary J. L. Lewis, of Sacramento, and the premise Superintendent F. W. Voigt will be in Fresno at the time to preside at the installation ceremonies.

This organization was founded primarily for the purpose of furnishing accident and health insurance policies to employees of the railroad and other ways, relieving them from dependence
on the old line insurance companies.

Since the old days of hand couplings
and clumsy air-brake fixtures, the old line companies have made little difference in the costs of policies, as it is the cost of the policy, and not the cost of the insurance, that is the factor in men is too great, in spite of the new automatic couplings for cars and air-brakes. So, high rates were paid for all insurance. However, the order has for the past three years been discharging its obligations in the way of accident and health insurance at a cost to the members of about 50 per cent of what they would have had to pay otherwise.

It is found that this great saving
can be made to the members by conducting the organization on fraternal principles, and not as a business, and in any other fraternal order, for the hope of holding their office, and the whole business being conducted on the same basis. The result has been immense savings for the railroad men of the state.

The order has divisions only on the Pacific coast, extending from Seattle to Los Angeles, and including some places in Nevada. It is proposed to make it national in extent.

TIME TO SPRAY TREES FOR THE PEACH BLIGHT

Growers May Control the Only Menace To Successful Peach Culture—Spread of the Cottony Cushion Scale.

BY W. R. MCINTOSH.

Now is the time to get busy with that spraying outfit in your peach orchards. The foliage must be sprayed with the Bordeaux mixture. In fact it may well have been attended to before now.

Those orchardists who have kept close to the department have been spraying their peach trees already. Others equally well-informed are waiting for an opportunity to spray first, in order to save something on the spraying material. This course is not recommended. The increased expense of spraying trees before pruning, rather than afterward, is too insignificant, in my judgment, to justify serious consideration.

If next year's crop is to be protected from the blight which seems now to be universally present throughout California, spraying must be completed before the middle of December, every year, while pruning may be attended to "most any old time," up to the first of March of each year. I would, under no circumstances, recommend early pruning in the average season.

Peach trees, like other deciduous fruit trees, should be pruned when in a dormant condition. That is, subsequent to our coldest weather. The lowest atmospheric temperature of the year, in the San Joaquin valley, is usually the latter part of December. Pruning should, therefore, follow rather than precede that time.

Now if spraying operations be deferred until after December you will get small beneficial results from it. It will help some, perhaps, to spray the trees before the first of February, but the maximum benefits can accrue to those who spray before December 15th of each year.

This November and December spraying is solely for that gummy disease known as "cottony cushion scale." Many growers make the mistake of clinging to the old notion of making one spraying answer for both the blight and curl leaf. The field workers from Berkeley have demonstrated over and over again the futility of such a practice. In the very latest bulletin on the subject from the publication office of the college of agriculture, University of California, this matter is handled with great care and precision, and should "close the discussion" for all time in relation thereto.

Let us fix the facts contained therein in permanent in our minds. It relates to the most serious menace to successful peach-growing in this valley, second only in importance to our raisin industry in Fresno county and far superior to it in all of the other counties of Central California. "California Peach Blight" says:

"When, in 1904 and 1905, the blight began to be abundant enough to attract notice, it was evident to all who observed the matter closely that the usual practice of peach-spraying in February or March was ineffective. Twelve check infested trees, which in December were found to be spotted with infection by the first of February, even with the heaviest and most thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture, or lime, salt and sulfur, applied in usual time, did not show any improvement directly through the spray-coating on affected twigs, and the disease was not checked in the least by the application. Knowing the cause of the disease to be a parasitic fungus, it is this habit of spraying in relation and disengagement suggested by the experience of 1904 and 1905, the idea became quite general by the fall of 1905 that spraying in December would be the most promising time for successful control. The disease being a fungus, and the fall of 1905 being a very dry one, the majority of the growers held to the hope that the blight would not occur again as before and took no unusual means for its control. Several in the San Joaquin valley, however, and a few in the Sacramento valley, sprayed their trees in December, and when the very severe development of the disease came on in February, 1906, the results were most complete and strongly showing in general that one thorough spraying early in December with the Bordeaux mixture will be, and for the future will be, the most effective remedy for the disease. After December the results were not so good, and gradually deteriorated up to February, from which time on sprayed trees were no better than unsprayed in respect to this disease."

One orchard, sprayed mostly in December, but finished in January, showed a decided difference in the two portions. Spraying in December was a perfect success; in January partially so. In February and March without any effect whatever on this disease. The blight was so bad in unsprayed or late-sprayed orchards, with the foliage and fruit almost entirely gone, and all growth on those sprayed in December perfect, particularly the lower blight-susceptible fruiting twigs, that one could see so striking a contrast in the treatment of control of this disease.

A REAL SEA VOYAGE IS FOUND WHILE "JAMMING THE WIND" IN THE PACIFIC

The Romance of the Sea Actually Exists On a Sailing Vessel, Where Calms and Storms Count, Where Salt Horse Is Still Familiar, and Where Rude Weather and Rough Men Are Common Companions.

BY FREDERICK B. MOORE.

A scene on deck, with all sail set, at sea. The bark "R. P. Rithet," just before she left her dock at Honolulu.

A real savor of seafife, a real sea voyage and not a mere stay on a large and well-appointed floating hotel, can be fully experienced today only on a sailing vessel, where "salt horse" is still the staple diet, and the crew, other than the captain, are the only ones who see the life of the ocean from the standpoint of the thousands of sailors who follow the calling all their lives, and never for a moment experience the luxury of knowing just where they were going to get there. The real sea voyage, after all, is made under conditions even today not at all dissimilar from those found when Columbus made his great run down the coast, and discovered the New World.

To a limited extent, travel by sea is still a novelty. Some of the world's most famous travel agencies, and the Hawaiian Islands and the Pacific Coast, where sailing vessels still make more or less regular runs, in the sugar trade.

The traveler who embarks on a "windjammer" leaves the dock with all of the confusion and excitement which attends the departure of any steamer. He leaves the world behind. No wireless for him. He has been told that the ship is a "windjammer," and the direction of a bucket-mate, and has found himself relegated to the poop deck until the first hard work of putting to sea is over. The tug puffs alongside, lines are cast off, and the vessel moves forward, and the vessel moves forward, and the vessel moves forward.

All Nice While There Is Wind. The voyage is a thing of perfection as long as the wind holds. One only sees two or three of the men who seem at liberty to swear the loudest and shout the most at the others of the ship's company are the officers. Otherwise, all look the same. Gold braids and brass buttons are conspicuous by their absence. No precious jewels, that these done-in-the-race sailors are privileged to take their meals aft, in the cabin, and so the leaves began to fall in considerable numbers. Then somebody made the discovery that there was another insect which fairly depopulated the vineyards of Mr. C. C. Cushman. This is the vedalia cardinalis, or lady bug. These were turned into the remaining orchards and soon made way with the scale pest. It was not long until "feeding grounds" for the lady bug was at a premium.

Flow of our growers know the lady bug is one of their natural "frenemies." The vedalia began dying off for want of sustenance. Then the wind went forth to "save the scale" to feed the lady. Now the "lady" has disappeared, and the scale is again becoming more and more numerous.

The cottony cushion scale, which was the pest of the peach orchards during the past two or three years is not without interest at this time. While there is no serious menace involved in its dissemination in this valley, its prevalence and somewhat could increase a young certainly justifies attention from the "constituted authorities."

are immeasurably removed from the herd. Then, the wind probably falls calm. The passenger sees, by a look at the water, that he is actually not going anywhere at all, and he chafes under the much more severely rolls about, without the pressure in the wind to steady him, and whom stalks about the boat.

When four of us set sail in the bark "R. P. Rithet," Captain A. P. Drew, from Honolulu last September 20th, we soon saw all this and much more. When it fell calm off the southern coast of the island of Oahu, we contented ourselves by staying below, and arranging our "luggage" as our clothes and other belongings are termed, in our cabins. Some of us were very unwell and dependent. The cabins are far from being the more or less convenient if cramped abodes one finds on a liner. They are crude, but we decided that we would not mind that for a while.

By midnight the bark had made her way in a light breeze, up through the Kaula Channel, and was standing out to the open sea, steering straight north, as the nearest to her course toward San Francisco which the trade winds would permit her to take.

"But, we didn't. Much storm and calm on it." "Idle as a Painted Ship." For three days, while the trades blew, we found life a pleasant thing, but on the fourth, the wind fell dead, and we realized the fate of the Ancient Mariner. The vessel, riding high with only 500 tons of ballast below decks, rolled unmercifully, and we learned something about eating at sea. The table was fitted with a rack, each dish being set in a compartment, and each person eating from a box which resembled a horse trough or a manger in any stable. If one forest to hold any implement of table furniture, it was sure to fly down the table into someone's lap. And, to cap the climax, we found that the cook, who boasted of forty-one years' experience at sea, had the most marvellously small imagination of any cook that ever was committed to a galley. The bill of fare during the time when we rolled, was the only stable and absolutely fixed thing on board.

A Fair Breeze. Next morning, when we—meaning the passengers—were on deck, the skipper told us with a broad grin that we were on a fair course at last, pointing our "nose" straight for the Golden Gate. This was lovely, but gloom settled over our board that evening at a supper when we were informed that the wind had shifted, and we were headed in the general direction of Tokyo or Peking. For three days, this kept up, and every morning in the ship grew steadily worse. The "Rithet" was getting miles on miles a day, and getting not one mile nearer the Farallones.

430 Miles Per Week. Then came another morning when the mates said "fair wind" and we knew we were on our way once more. At the end of the first seven days, we were just 430 miles from the place where we had started and this not on anything like a straight line for the place to which we were going.

Then it grew misty, and the wind squall stronger and the southwest breeze came on Saturday on board. A vessel was scudding along, with yards squared and all sail set with the exception of some of the fore-and-aft canvases.

"The girls have hold of the line," said the skipper, "and they will now us home all right." The bark was making ten knots, and the breeze coming up.

"She could do with half of R," observed the mate, referring to the wind. "Pretty soon, we'll get more as we will be home all right."

The day following we got it. Piped a Gale. The other male passenger and I with some difficulty made our way on deck that Sunday morning, to find the wind blowing and howling at a great rate, with a big sea running from the southwest.

right over the bulwarks when they hit the side of the vessel. The crew was going about in oil skins, but the captain was still in his regulation garb, until a swell broke at the weather main rigging, and drenched him thoroughly. He found no leisure to go to his cabin, so he pulled off his soaked garments on deck, and called to the cabin boy to get some more from below, with many accusations of self.

Walking was a matter of peril. Frequently we had lubbers found ourselves skating across the wet deck on our hands and knees, and even the skipper was seen once in this undignified attitude. The rolling of the craft was sharp and heavy in the extreme, the water coming in through the scuppers on first one side and then the other. One was apt to think that he might take a roll and decide not to come back at all, but just go on around until her keel was up nearest the clouds. Somehow, she managed not to do quite that badly.

Cargo Is Dangerous. By afternoon, the wind had increased to a strong gale, and the canvas was reduced to topails and the lower sails.

I wouldn't mind it if it wasn't for those rollers below deck," said the mate. "That's what worries me."

Thereafter, we took to listening momentarily for something to break loose below.

In the "ween-decks almost a score of 3-topplers had been lashed. They are immense pieces of solid iron, of an awkward shape, any one of which would have gone through the steel sides of the craft like a projectile if once it got loose, or if one of them managed to roll down the steep incline of the deck below. It is impossible to say how many of them were lashed in, and most of them chained, but some of them forward were bound in only by hemp cable, and this was chafing through. It was a question of how long the manila hemp would hold. Would the cables out last the storm? We hoped so.

Otherwise, there would have been nothing for it but the boats. Extreme difficulty would have attended the launching of these—we had two of them—in the heavy sea, and when they were once in the water and proceeding on a 500-mile sea would be before us to the Farallone Islands, now the nearest land. As the storm raged through the afternoon, we the passengers, talked of the chances of safety in such a case; recalled the plight of other shipwrecked sailors, who had made long trips from land, only to reach port starving and dying of thirst and exposure. The cook added to the situation by declaring a cruise of twenty-one days which he once made in an open boat after he had been wrecked. He and one other of a dozen who left the sinking vessel were the only ones who ever made land. It was very cheering.

That night, staying in one's bunk was a matter of precaution and hanging on. Trunks and wardrobe trunks were lashed to the bulkheads, and the deck every once in a while it was fatal to go to sleep and sit up to hold fast. Such a thing as getting on a settee was impossible. The roll of the old tub presented any such proceedings. One was liable to be hurled overboard, or to slide the length of the settee very suddenly and very unpleasantly at any moment.

Sail Blows Away. At midnight, the blow was at its worst. All hands on the passengers and the crew were on deck. Few had slept in forty-eight hours. At about midnight, the wind went around with a sweep to the northwest, catching the vessel on the port quarter, and ripping the foresail into shreds. The great sail went with a crash and a boom like the report of a cannon, and the shreds streamed away in the wind. Left with the larger amount of canvas on the mainmast, the bark was hoisted. Rain descended in torrents. Then came the rolling. The seas swamped into her with terrific force. She shook from stem to stern at the impact. The bulwarks were rolled under, and the spray flew over the deck houses. Below the scrap iron which composed the greater part of her ballast began to shift, and for a while the heavy lumber of the craft, with a deafening and terrifying noise. Nothing which was not lashed very tight.

"This is what we call a fresh gale," said the skipper. "Wind's blowing 70 miles an hour, and we're making thirteen knots an hour."

The rollers had a nice little curl to them, which sent the tops breaking

VINEYARD AND ALFALFA LANDS BOTH IN DEMAND

General Call For Muscat and Dairy Properties—Big Business Shown in Figures—Pool Strengthens Market.

When rains sell, the land will follow. This is the consensus of opinion among dealers. That both Muscat and alfalfa lands are now in active demand is another feature of the situation. Money is increasingly looser, while Pierce & Anderson come forward with figures, published also elsewhere in this paper, which show that in the past few months they have been doing a bright business. It is stated by a number of the men who are selling the land that the demand is now better than it was at this time last year. And all expect things to grow better right along.

Office in Los Angeles. Edwin Scott, with Pierce & Anderson, has been absent for some days past in Los Angeles, establishing there a branch office of the local firm. He got the office open last Monday, and during the week, not less than twenty-five inquiries were reported, and negotiations were opened and ready to go on in Fresno county. This office is fitted up in a store building. The show windows are filled with a display of photos of Fresno county, while about a hundred of these photos, including fine panoramas, are shown in and about the office. Arrangements are also being made for a display of Fresno products.

The office will help to divert this way some of the large number of people who are all of the time going into Los Angeles—arrivals from other parts of the country, many of whom are looking for homes. It seems, according to the observations of the Chambers of Commerce, which keep track of such matters, that almost every Eastern visitor who comes to California either goes directly to Los Angeles, or visits there en route later. So, it is taken as an ideal place to reach people.

Big Business Done. The figures of this firm, as compiled within the last few days, show a very large business, under existing circumstances. The past few months and a volume of business which would be good at any time. The business carried on by this one firm in that time may be tabulated as follows:

Unimproved lands, large and small tracts ..... $157,300
Improved lands ..... 58,750
Fresno city houses ..... 47,900
Fresno city lots ..... 7,250

Total for four months ..... $271,200
Interest in San Joaquin Valley, California in Los Angeles, Mr. Scott says:

"In Los Angeles there is a disposition on the part of the dealers to take an interest in San Joaquin valley lands. The lands advertised there are mostly in Kings and Tulare counties, but in all of the San Joaquin valley, and it all advertises Fresno county, so I don't feel that we should object to that advertising there."

General objects of interest in the real estate offices are birds' eye views of the San Joaquin valley, of course, particular plats and sections marked out by individual dealers. A good deal of interest is manifested in lands here, as there would not have been some years ago by the Los Angeles people."

This firm reports a good business for the week just past, with some $50,000 in acreage. Two houses in this city, one for $2500 and one for $6000, and an improved property selling for $3500, are among their sales for the week.

Demand For Hog-Wallows. Shepherd & Teague have found lately a decided demand among persons who are well acquainted with agricultural conditions in this part of the country, for rough, hog-wallow land. It is reported that these people find that they can buy this land and use it for agriculture with more profit in the end than if they have invested in land already perfect.

L. R. Teague of Shepherd Teague Co. said yesterday afternoon: "Business is brisk in inquiry and we are making some sales. Business, in fact, as compared with that of this time last year, is much better. There was not much doing last season until after the first of the year."

"The raisin situation having become about settled will have a good effect on the business. What we lack now is some rain."

"We are having the usual large number of inquiries from the East, and from Eastern people, both in person and by letter. We have recently sold a large acreage, east of Clovis, for planting cucumbers. We have also sold a large tract to the International Vineyard company, and by the end of the planting season they will have in several hundred acres for people all over the United States."

This firm has a good list of recent sales to reveal. They sold twenty acres to N. A. Cole, forty acres to Joe Gatti, ten acres to Mr. Vorzay, five acres to Mr. Graber, five acres to Mr. Saunders, thirty acres to Mr. Bopp, fifteen to Mr. Luthige, twenty to Mr. Wagner, twenty to Mr. Paschbrock, twenty to A. S. Woodard, thirty to M. L. Woodard, and ten to Elias L. Woodard.

Demand For Muscat and Alfalfa Lands. The forecast of last week that there would be a strong demand for improved lands has been more than verified," observed DeWitt H. Gray. "A number of sales have been made and tendency of purchasers generally is toward Muscat vineyard. A number of pieces of good alfalfa land have also been sold, and especially is land most well developed places, being close to Fresno, where the delivery of the crop can be made without the expense of long hauls."

Mr. Gray mentions that a good deal of the opportunity which is offered by planting of alfalfa near the city has been overlooked until lately. In a district which has been used for a long time always toward vine culture, land will be found where the vines are sold, and do not pay, or where their culture is for one reason or another not good business. The land has been overlooked until lately, devoted closely to vineyard, and the district in which alfalfa is raised pushed further and further out from the town. The average farmer who owns a few acres of land plants every foot of it in his vines, and depends on buying his feed from district farther out. But, this district has been so removed now that there is an increased cost per ton for hauling the hay which is becoming very considerable.

Putting in Alfalfa. The proposition is that some farmers are realizing that they can buy up old pieces of vineyard, cut out old and unprofitable vines, and plant alfalfa on subirrigated lands, where there is no necessity for checking or flooding, and where four crops may be raised in one year, right in the midst of consumers, so that the grower may ask relatively more for his hay than the man in the outlying district, and get it, because he saves money on transportation.

Fresno county is becoming less and less dependent on any one resource, and the tendency to put in alfalfa in vine districts is taken as an indication that farmers will begin to pursue more and more the Eastern method of diversifying products to some extent.

So, two demands are found in Muscat lands—a demand for healthy vineyards or new vineyard lands for raisin culture, and a demand for old, worn-out vineyards, which may be used for hay raising.

DeWitt H. Gray and company have sold in the past week three forty-acre tracts of improved lands east of Fresno. Property there is of a higher price, relatively, than in other districts, and it is looked upon as a good indication that the number of holding holds and have the money to take hold, in localities where lands are held at a good, stiff price.

Does Pool Affect Market? The question, Does the raisin pool show any effect in the real estate market? calls forth a number of answers, all of which have the same general tendency. It seems to be a general opinion that the prospect of the raisin business going on a solid business basis has strengthened confidence of speculators and of investors, and that they are more willing to take hold than before the formation of the present pool.

H. H. Alexander says, "The formation of the raisin pool given confidence. As soon as money begins to circulate freely, there will be lots of money, and that fact alone will be showing a stiffening effect, and that things will move off with a lively jump when the present holdings in raisins sell."

DeWitt H. Gray said, in regard to the raisin pool, "The raisin pool is to sell on a conservative basis, rather than that there will be any slaughtering, gives the investor confidence. He realizes that this is an off year. He compares the prices paid for Fresno county products with the prices paid for other parts of the state, and he finds that those prices are as good, at least."

There is another point mentioned in this connection. Fresno county is no longer absolutely dependent upon the raisin crop for its prosperity, say the raisin men. It is a two-story brick structure going up on the corner of E and Tulare streets, which is to be used for a store building. It is to be more modern than any other structure in that quarter of the city. At present, the fire walls only are up. The whole building will be completed at a cost of $15,000. It will have a basement floor with concrete. The completed store will have a frontage of fifty feet on E street and 100 feet on Tulare.

This extends the Japanese quarter a full block to the west of where we have a year ago supplanting some old buildings long deserted with a modern and sanitary structure.

WELLS, FARGO & COMPANY "OLD HOGS" SALE

NEW PARISIAN STYLES OF DRESSING

PARIS, Nov. 7. We have had the strenuous life exemplified in our hairdressing for the last few years, but this winter the Parisienne is rejoicing in the Wagnerian idea of a simple coiffure existence, and the new Greco-Roman model is the way in which the simple life expresses itself in a woman's fascinating tresses. However, this is an elaborate simplicity as formulated today. Large pompadours, strings of applied puffs and curls have ceased to exist for the modern fashion. Indeed, it is a question whether the really well-groomed woman ever forgot herself sufficiently to permit her head to be made the subject of the cartoonist's wit. In adapting the first empire and directoire styles, which Dame Fashion decrees smart women must do, uniformly demands that her hair should be dressed in keeping. The classic Psyche knot and the Grecian fillet, therefore, are things to conjure with nowadays. So hairdressers have been visiting art museums to copy the coiffures of ancient statues, for you know it was from Greek art that the empire coiffures drew their inspirations. It is quite within the province of the up-to-date girl to arrange her hair becomingly either in the directoire style, the Psyche or the modified directoire without the least particle of trouble when she is given a few hints as to the modern operandi. In dressing the hair in any of these styles for the street the pompadour still has a part to play, for no hair is luxuriant enough to stand out at the sides unaided to meet the requirements of the big directoire hat. As a foundation a transformation is used under the hair instead of an unhygienic rat. This transformation consists of a circular band of narrow wire that encircles the crown of the head. To this wire is attached the false hair, varying in length and thickness according to the wearer's needs. It fits down securely on the crown of the head, and a couple of hairpins, run through tiny loops made for the purpose, hold it in place. So, you see, in this way there is no insupportable mat in which dust and dandruff may find a lodgment, only the narrow rim of wire lying close to the head, while the hair attached to it combs in naturally with one's own.

The real hair is brushed down all round the head and is then gathered, together with the false locks of the transformation, and secured halfway between the nape of the neck and the crown of the head. The front and side tresses are pulled out in loose, natural looking waves at the sides and front, and the hair is then either separated into sections that are pulled or made into single loose curls. When the hair is too scanty to make much of a display a few false curls or puffs are pinned over the knot to make it stand out at the proper Psyche angle. Of course, it is much easier to make the puffs from the curls of one's own hair, but it is not a social crime to wear the hair of some one else. The artificial puffs are used separately, and attached as they are to long, strong hairpins. It is an easy matter to tuck them in in a careless fashion wherever the need presents itself or becomingness demands. There must be no suggestion of stiffness about the puffs if they would pass muster with the fashionable woman. When nature has not blessed one with curly hair the straight locks are waved over so little of large undulations, with never a hint of the iron. Under the Psyche knot the hair is pulled out slightly to give a small puffed appearance, but the fillet of the hair at the nape of the neck must be preserved and the "trashing lock" caught up with a barrette. Different arrangements of the evening coiffure are shown in the illustrations. The figure prominently in one of the models, with a ribbon bow stuck in carelessly among them. And another cut exploits the very low dressing helped out with fluffy curls, and still another more elaborate arrangement of puffs has ribbon wound in and out among the waved tresses. A half wreath of flowers finishes the coiffure at one side. There is nothing more fetching than the St. Cecilia effect as shown in one of the illustrations, but this very trying style absolutely demands a purely Greek cast of features. The fillet adds the Hellenic touch.

The Correct Angle for the Psyche.

The angle in smart hairdressing this season reads with the line in the dressmaking world and is the axis of the coiffure situation. The French woman is more concerned about the position of her hairdressing than she is with the fact of its being curly or straight. The American has her culture built to still her facial lines. She has decided that the present angle of the knot, just below the crown of the head, yet not in the neck, is just her style. Artists say that this position is the only truly becoming one for the American woman.

The dressy coiffure is more elaborate than the street and afternoon arrangements. Still, it carries very little from the simple style. The elaborate consists of a more imposing array of puffs and curls at the back of the head in a Greek style rather than in any variety of arrangement. The finished effect, though, must be soft and fluffy, whatever the means to the end. The hairpins of the whole are gorgeous and enormous affairs. A favorite design here is Paris comes in and her, tortoise shell, metal and jet and curves so as to fit well about the base of the Grecian knot. For everyday use the metal and tortoise shell are most seen. The usual form of the big barrette is a plain oblong shield. Some of the other varieties show irregular edges and carved, inlaid or jeweled incrustations. One of the best filled models has the shield cut in an intricate all over openwork design. Many of the shell barrettes are inlaid with silver or gilt or incrustated with a design in brilliant. A number of the large barrettes do not follow this severe oblong model, but are designed in any attractive shape that adapts itself to the different forms of fashionable hair doing. Some curve up from the base of the neck to curve above the ears. Then there are the barrettes and high combs that fit in at the top of the knot that match exactly and are worn together.

For the woman who can successfully wear the typical Greek styles of hairdressing there is nothing more becoming than an inch wide band of gold, silver or jeweled metal carrying a classical Greek key pattern or a standard of semicircular combs. More modern adaptations of the antique fillet are in brilliant jet, in rhinestones and in pearls, but these ornaments are not nearly so effective as the one of strict antique character. Fillets of ribbon are also worn, but they are more decorative than anything else. Fillets of ribbon are also worn, but they are more decorative than anything else. Fillets of ribbon are also worn, but they are more decorative than anything else.

fillets of ribbon fastens with large, flat jeweled pins at the top, sides or back of the head, and sometimes in all these places, although sometimes and small bows are substituted. Very lovely likewise are the fillets of flowers, especially those made of small white silken blossoms. Satin ribbon wired and twisted into fanciful shapes is worn in the hair, and velvet, too, is made up in the same style.

Dainty and girlish is an upstanding, rather small bow of inch wide gold, silver or jeweled metal, carrying a classical Greek key pattern or a standard of semicircular combs. More modern adaptations of the antique fillet are in brilliant jet, in rhinestones and in pearls, but these ornaments are not nearly so effective as the one of strict antique character. the deft fingers of an artist to give just the right twist and line to the ribbon fillet and to place the cabochon plus in the hair without suggesting a large pin cushion filled with a particularly happy assortment of bangles. Consequently many women feel safer when wearing the ready-made snood or ornament and in this way discount the risk of imparting a stiff or awkward effect to their hairdressing.

Along with the general tendency to resurrect old things one hears that bangles are again coming into fashion. To be more exact, I should say that there is a determined effort being made in this direction.

Put if the sentiments of one man are to be taken as an evidence of the way the wind is blowing there will be little doing in this hideous style of hairdressing. While contentedly reading his evening paper this man was startled out of his usual calm by hearing his pretty wife say, "I wonder whether it will be much trouble to cut my hair for bangles?" "For bangles?" the husband gasped, to which excited question came the bland reply: "Why, of course. Bangles are the fashion again." "Well, they won't be the fashion in this house," I should not be surprised if such conjugal bravery met with success.

DIRECTOIRE ADVANTAGES.

One laudable accomplishment must be set down to the credit of the directoire dress—it has killed the vogue for tight lacing. From this is to be urged no lapse into slovenliness. The figure must be trained to maintain a perfection of trimness if the gown that does not define the wasp waist is to look beautiful. That is why suits of mallet are worn and why the princess skirt and camisole all in one has established a reputation for elegance that will not pass away from it for some little time at any rate.

What the aim after a classical effect has brought about is the manifestation of a well modeled figure. There are no exaggerations permitted. The statuary of the ancient Greeks has brought home to the instincts of the modern dressmaker the true beauty that has its foundation in naturalism; hence the draped effects that are now so intensely admired.

Women who permit their figures to be swathed in delicately thin and supple materials have gone far on the road toward the manifestation of true beauty, but they may be sure that they would not allow such liberties to be taken with their appearance if their figures were not elegant enough to support the distinctly trying ordeal.

NEW MATERIALS FOR GUIMPES.

Instead of lace and mesh net there will be a good deal of colored flit net used stamped in the new way. It is not unlike the flower net used for summer frocks and blouses several years ago, although the mesh is many times thicker and more open.

The new surface is covered with

Faults of the Modern American System of Education; Fate of Those Unlearned In the Ways of Society

I CAN tell you some things—education is not book knowledge, not by a long shot. Real education is what teaches you how to get along with your fellow men, how to control yourself, how to "make good" in this world.

Did you ever see a man or woman who was crammed full of book knowledge and nothing else? I have known such people, and they were simply impossible to have as friends or even calling acquaintances. They know nothing of the world or its social usages. They were more than rude; they didn't even know they were rude. I have known college women so devoid of social tact and grace that they appeared like savages when in society. They made countless enemies and all kinds of trouble for themselves just because they didn't know how to conduct themselves in the company of their fellow beings.

With their loud laughs and their curt remarks I don't see how any one could call them educated.

What She Needs. Philistine schools are not such silly affairs as certain high browed would have us think. A woman does not need Latin or Greek to be a success in this world, but she does need what the French call savoir faire, which, literally translated, means the art of knowing how to get along.

I have seen so many tragedies of lonely lives led by women who would gladly have been sociable and popular, only they didn't know how. These women were highly educated as far as schooling went, they were well born and agreeable, but they lacked all the little graces that make one popular.

When you go to a dance you know people don't care whether you studied Latin or not, it won't even worry them if you can't spell, but you must be able to dance gracefully and carry on your share of small talk.

The etiquette of cards is a hundred times more important than French history to a woman, and table manners are of greater moment than all her degrees put together. It is these things that stamp a woman socially and influence her happiness and her entire life.

A Pernicious System.

I hope I am not devoting too much space in the Kate Clyde letter to discussing this subject, but it is one we are all of us realizing nowadays. Our whole system of education, both for girls and for boys, is a serious handicap. The high school under the influence of woman teachers does not teach the boy to be a man. It does not put virile influences in his life at the time when he needs them. It does not in him to battle with the world successfully. He does not need poetry or history or botany so much as he needs a knowledge of a useful trade, of men and of life.

It's the same with a girl. She does not need higher mathematics or sciences, but she does want knowledge that will fit her to be a happy, gracious member of society. Education should be based strictly on sex and future environment to be any good at all, and I hope by writing this I will bring the subject to the attention of a good many mothers among my readers. They need to have their eyes opened.

Two Suits Enough.

The dress and coat suit is one of the greatest inventions of the age. It can be made either elaborate or otherwise, but it is always useful. With two suits of this description a woman can go through the winter very comfortably. For general wear one of these may be of deep red cloth. The dress will be smart if it is made on the semipompadour model, fastening down the left side of the front with a long row of black buttons. The sleeves are best of tucked cloth, while the low cut yoke and jabot are soft and pretty made of net. This net yoke can be made on a guimpé foundation in order that it may be changed often and kept immaculate. Of course a dress meant for street wear clears the ground, but this little gown is not a hair's breadth shorter than it needs to be. The coat which goes with it can be three-quarter length, trimmed with buttons and with a turnover collar of black satin finished with a black satin tie. Then a jaunty little toque trimmed with roses would go well with this costume, and the entire outfit could be worn practically all day long.

For ceremonious calls and for evening wear an occasion when full dress is not required the other costume is just the thing. This would be stunning made in moleskin cloth, embroidered in lighter tones. The gown should follow strictly empire lines, and it should have a slight train. The coat should be as long as possible, and the fronts should not quite meet in order to allow the embroidered front panel of the dress to be seen. A very large hat should be worn with this.

As I said before, two suits of the kind I have described will see a woman through the winter nicely.

It is not the number of gowns one has, but the selection of them that counts.

The Curse of Sensitiveness.

If I had a child it might have all the troubles it wanted and a nose that turned upward and an untractable disposition, but there is one thing it would not have if I could help it, and that is a sensitive disposition.

What a curse sensitiveness is both to a man and woman! How it makes them suffer needlessly and launch all sorts of rights which were never intended.

And all this can be cured in infancy. A child begins by being self-centered; it ends by growing morbid. The wise mother sees this tendency and directs the child's attention away from his own self to more cheerful and less selfish thoughts, thus saving it countless misery in the future.

A Sympathetic Confidant.

Every woman should have some trusted friend to whom she can tell her little troubles—not her family affairs (they should remain sacred to her), but her little trials and difficulties. This friend should be wise and mature so that her advice would be worth having. And do you know why I advise every woman to have such a friend? So that she will not inflict the recital of her troubles on her husband and that poor man won't come home dead tired from a disappointing day's work at the office.

You don't know what it means to come home dead tired and to meet trouble at the door the moment it is opened. It is so depressing the wonder is not that a man stays out late at night, but that he stays at home at all under the circumstances. I once had a studio with a girl who was a living personification of the blues. If anything went wrong she simply had to unload it all on me. I felt like beating her, and it spoke volumes for the patience of men that they don't beat such wives.

Women, brace up! Bear your burdens on your own shoulders. Men have just as much to bear—ten times more—and yet you never hear them whine. If you must confide, why, as I said before, choose some confidant of your own sex and spare the man who is working hard for you. He deserves at least a cheerful home and a restful evening. Your troubles will keep until tomorrow and perhaps then they won't seem up so large.

So try my remedy.

TO REMODEL OLD SLEEVES.

Girls who are filled with the economical idea of making over the sleeves of last year's gowns cannot do better than to adopt the type of sleeve which is merely a succession of wide folds extending from shoulder to wrist and fitting the arm almost tightly, for by so doing many small pieces of material may be employed that otherwise would be useless.

If there is not enough cloth or silk, as the case may be, for an entire sleeve, the folds may extend to the elbow and from thence be pieced out with net or silk muslin cuffs. The wrists of all such sleeves must fit perfectly.

for knights to honor such of their followers as distinguished themselves in battle by presenting them with a feather to wear in their caps which, when not in armor, was the coverings of their heads, and no one was permitted that privilege who had not "killed his man."

A MODISH TOUCH.

If you want to live up to a black coat suit, put in a waistcoat of American beauty satin or velvet. This is a smart touch and shows that you are quite in with the fashions.

feely, else they will be an utter failure, and the best way to avoid this disaster is to button or hook them on the under side where a little extra lapping will not matter.

IN GRAY ATTIRE.

A lovely little gray voile was seen in a shop recently that was one of the best examples of a model of this sort. Its beauty was its extreme simplicity. The empire line above the waist line was accentuated by bands of gray tulle, constituting the sole trimming. The gown fell in considerable fullness below the shaped waist line. It had a slight sweep all about, but could have been shorter if desired. There was a turnover collar at the neck, which was low, to be worn over a lace stock. There is going to be a great demand for those plain one piece dresses for general wear, just as the more elaborate empire gown will be the proper one for evening wear. And this fact will create a field for odd wraps of all sorts.

LARGE PUFFS OUT OF STYLE.

It is no longer considered fashionable to wear large puffs in the hair. It is much more in evidence whether they are one's own or bought and applied. They are out of style.

The girl who attempts the former coiffure of three large puffs at the back of the head, running to the nape of the neck, should learn to do her hair otherwise.

The little puffs are the ones in fashion. They are bought by the string and pinned on the hair just above the collar. The only come worn with them is a perfectly flat one on top of the head that pushes the pompadour forward. Its rim must not stand up, but must nestle down in the pompadour.

MAY FROWN ON HUGE CHIGNONS.

"Fashion is born in Paris," and when attempts are made at transplanting it can't always stand the change. Of the fashion of piling on false hair a woman said recently that the time was long since past when even a queen could lead womankind to make itself ridiculous. It was Queen Maria Theresa who introduced the enormous headresses, simply because she was dumpy and wished to look royally dignified. For the same reason she wore high heeled shoes. But, after all, what was the use of piling up her hair with cushions when every other woman at court proceeded to follow her example, and Maria Theresa thereby looked as insignificant as before?

THE MATERIAL SIDE OF THANKSGIVING DAY.

BRIEF VANITIES.

There is a new feature in the makeup of the fashionable skirt which will help out the dressmaker who has had her troubles in trying to bring the unlined, perfectly fitted skirt into correct lines. This is a sheath girdle which is shaped to the waist and hips like a glove and that forbids any stretching of the material in drawing it tight enough at these points. Such girdles are found under high waisted directoire skirts and in otherwise unlined princess models.

Are you skilled in the art of tying a bow or string for your hands will be sorely needed for the new directoire skirt. The ends are to be twisted into the sash's Turk's head knot. "Thimble" is the newest and most effective. The folds of silk are laced and interlaced in sailor fashion into the large, soft balls which end the streamers.

Large roses made of crepe de chine is a style of hat trimming that is favored by Parisian women and recently made its appearance in this country. In size these roses resemble a cabbage much more than they do any prize American Beauty rose that was ever grown, but that makes no difference so long as the effect is good, and the fact that they, or, rather, it, for one of satin which holds the purple, the triumphant counters around trim effectively blouses of plain colored net. Clothes this season have taken on a particularly sultry look and match the sashes in shade. One may have an afternoon gown of satin with an accompanying cloak of cloth and yet give the impression of a whole satin costume, so cleverly are cloth and satin matched.

"A feather in your cap" comes from days when it was customary

for knights to honor such of their followers as distinguished themselves in battle by presenting them with a feather to wear in their caps which, when not in armor, was the coverings of their heads, and no one was permitted that privilege who had not "killed his man."

The Prince and the American Senator's Daughter; Louis of Savoy No Half Hearted Wooer.

ALTHOUGH theoretically America is not supposed to wax enthusiastic over princes, who among us is ready to deny that Louis of Savoy is a gallant fellow, a prince in every sense of the word, comely, with the looks and manner of a thoroughbred, competent in his profession, which is that of a sailor, and known far and wide as a singularly fearless and successful explorer and a modest record breaker in polar navigation? In undoubted possession of this satisfactory combination, he is worthy to become the husband of any American girl, and that he has chosen one of them for his life companion has not in any way detracted from the good opinion in which he was held long before he made up his mind that life without Miss Katherine Elkins would be too empty to be endured.

His only fault seems to be that he is a prince, a royal prince at that. Were he a nobleman of far lesser degree or even of bourgeois origin he would be accepted readily enough on his merits, but because he happens to be a member of one of the oldest and proudest reigning families in Europe, the grandson, son and nephew of men and women who have been crowned as sovereigns and is related closely to most of the reigning houses it is quite a different matter.

That Prince Louis's proposition to furnish the house of Savoy with a princess who is noble only in the literal American sense has been met with the most active opposition in practically all the courts of Europe is a matter of record. From the first it has been an exceedingly uncomfortable affair for his family, and the Italian nation has not shown its traditional sympathy in such matters. From the first no Italian has been able to see how the transformation of an American girl into a royal Italian princess, with the right of succession to the Italian throne, could be accomplished.

A Doleful Precedent.

There is no precedent to be taken as a guide unless the somewhat similar experience of Prince Louis's father and mother can be made to serve. It is not an experience that commends itself to the intelligent American girl. The prince's mother, a most estimable woman, was not of royal birth, although she belonged to a family noble on both sides. Prince Amadeus was very much in love with her and determined to marry her in spite of the remonstrances of his family. Although the bride was a singularly beautiful, wonderfully clever and altogether fascinating woman, who before her marriage had been a welcome guest at all the great houses in the kingdom, she was treated very badly by the court ladies after the wedding. They refused absolutely to accord to her the honors due to the daughter in law of the king, and her life at court was unendurable. It was on that account, rather than for any other reason, that her indignant husband accepted the position of king of Spain when it was offered to him in 1870.

The ill-treated young couple fancied that as king and queen of Spain they would not be subject to the indignities which they were made to suffer in their native Italy. That was the mistake of their lives. It was only another case of stepping out of the frying pan into the fire. In Madrid the young queen was boycotted even more cruelly than she had been in Florence, Milan and Turin. This organized social persecution was carried so far that the king and queen were unable to find any faithful women of the requisite rank who was willing to act as her grand mistress of the robes or even as maid of honor. The grandees appeared to be ready to accord to King Amadeus all the respect due to royalty, but they declined to extend a like courtesy to his wife. In time the situation became unbearable. All Spanish lords of high degree seemed bent on frowning the poor queen, and the court maids were filled with humorous satirizing her. The young king was so irritated by this treatment of his wife that he abdicated the throne and returned to Italy only a few days after the birth of the Duke of the Abruzzi.

The sensitive and gentle woman was overruled by the treatment she had received, that she did soon after renounce her throne.

That sad and dolefully suggestive leaf from history would seem to be sufficient to cause any American girl to pause on the threshold. There is abundant evidence that it has had a deterrent effect in the case of Miss Elkins and her suitors.

That sad and dolefully suggestive leaf from history would seem to be sufficient to cause any American girl to pause on the threshold. There is abundant evidence that it has had a deterrent effect in the case of Miss Elkins and her suitors. Those who are acquainted with the senior senator from West Virginia are loath to believe that he could be influenced in any way to be a party to a transaction so antagonistic to his good judgment. In many ways he has made it plain that he is not at all daunted by the prospect of the royal alliance. He has made no secret of his liking for the young man who is anxious to become his son-in-law, but he has been equally frank to say that he should like him even better as a plain American citizen.

An Intolerable Position.

Unless the consent of the Italian royal family is given without reservation the position of any American woman married to one of its members would be intolerable in Italy. It might be infinitely worse than that of Prince Louis's charming mother. In that case King Victor Emmanuel gave his consent to the match and afterward his came devoted to his daughter-in-law. Miss Elkins as the wife of a prince of Savoy would be brought in more or less close contact with a large circle of royal relatives who would have it within their power to make it exceedingly disagreeable for her at the Italian court. One of these would be the great Duchess of Genoa, mother of Queen Margherita, sister of the late King George of Saxony.

There is nothing at all necessary in the talk of marriage settlements. Prince Louis is a man of wealth, a member of one of the richest families in Europe and has been regarded for a long time as one of the most eligible men in the matrimonial market. There is scarcely a royal princess on the continent whom he might not have had for the asking. He has had many an opportunity to better his fortunes to an extent even beyond that afforded by the Elkins alliance. He has made it plain that he wants the daughter and not the millions of her father. It is a sad commentary on modern progress if some satisfactory way cannot be discovered to bring about a union of these honorable young creatures now separated only by the artificial barriers which rank impose.

Prince Louis of Savoy has shown himself to be a man of infinite resources. The undertaking in which he is now engaged with all the energy of his splendid mind is the struggle of his life, but his past achievements point alluringly to success. If he cannot succeed in overcoming the very natural dislike of the house of Savoy for what it must always regard as a misalliance, there remains another way out of the maze if he be bold enough to take it. In 1854 Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, brother of the present German emperor's father, became a suitor for the hand of Miss Mary Esther Lee of New York city. Her father wouldn't listen to any suggestion of a mercenary alliance and declared that in order to obtain his consent the lover would have to abandon his prerogatives as a prince of the blood and descend to the rank of an ordinary nobleman. The prince accepted the terms and won his American bride. The union was a very happy one, and the pair were reckoned in the highest social circles in Europe.

Why cannot Prince Louis follow that example? Katherine Elkins is worth it. GEORGE H. PICARD.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Emperor Francis Joseph's inauguration of universal suffrage in Austria is leading to some startling and remarkable innovations in connection with the selection of cabinet ministers. Austria's domestic life is singularly happy, in spite of the fact that his subjects do not share his views concerning religion and sociology. The countess is sixteen years younger than her husband and, although the mother of thirteen children, is still beautiful and charming.

Here are some figures from a lumber camp up in Canada which give an idea as to the appetite of lucky woodmen: There are thirty-five men in this crew, and the cook reports that he makes each day 300 large biscuits, 150 doughnuts, thirty-six pies, baked six quarts of dry beans, with potatoes, vegetables, etc., in proportion. A large beef is eaten every five days.

For years the steel industry has confidently expected to see a fulfillment of the prediction made long ago that "the open hearth process will go to the funeral of the Bessemer." Recent developments indicate that the function will be a wedding instead of a funeral.

The shrinkage of wood from loss of moisture has been found by the United States forest service to range from 7 to 26 per cent of the dry volume in different species.

The East Indian banana has begun to compete with the West Indian fruit in English markets.

The human neck weighs from eight to twelve ounces and through it pass twenty-two and one-half pounds of blood every minute, or 11,530,000 pounds in one year.

Mrs. Carl Muck, wife of the new director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, is a fond of America and she says she has no desire to return to Berlin.

The great lakes rank next to the Atlantic coast in the quantity and value of coal consumed in steam propulsion. Out of 11,300,000 tons loaded on vessels for bunker purposes in 1907 these waters alone are credited with 25 per cent of the total coal tonnage required.

"I don't believe it's generally known," remarked J. H. W. Cowles, agent for John D. Rockefeller, the other day, "that Mr. Rockefeller never signs any personal checks. Everything goes through the regular channel and is made out by some of the Standard Oil people at 25 Broadway."

A black and white illustration by Bayard Jones. It depicts a scene with three people and a car. On the left, a woman in a dark, high-collared dress stands near a wooden fence. Next to her, a man in a suit and tie stands looking towards the right. In the center, a third person, wearing a long, light-colored coat and a hat, is walking away from the couple. This person is carrying a basket and pointing their right hand back towards the man and woman. To the right, the front of a vintage car is visible, with a license plate that reads "16089". The background shows a large tree and a fence. The artist's signature "BAYARD JONES" is in the bottom left corner.

"Got a license for your dog?"
 "Have to have one?"
 "Sure."
 "Pshaw! If he is going to be as much bother as that, I might as well have a husband!"

REAL SEA VOYAGE

mained still. Dishes, trunks, loose furniture crashed about. And all the time, we listened every moment for the sailors to go adrift, and knock the side clear out of her.

Near morning, the wind abated, and she was put on her course again. But the sea remained up, and she continued her ungainly motion.

The Worst Ever.
"I have been in ships and ships," said the second mate, "but never in any that could roll like this one." She tried hard enough, at any rate.

These mill appliances still sat like an 8-ton weight on all our minds. The food served during the storm showed even less imagination on the part of the cook than usual. He complained that he was tired from keeping his balance in the galley. His invention must have been ruined at the same time, as we had salt horse pretty regularly, and little change of diet.

On Monday, the other male passenger and I shaved. It had long since become a pressing necessity. He had the advantage of a safety razor, and cut himself in a minimum number of places. But, in an attempt to guide my razor by the help of a looking glass about 12 by 18 inches in size, at such times as I got a glimpse of the reflection in the mirror in passing—the rest of my time was taken up in leaning to the furious rolling of the craft, and it was only once in a while that I got a look at the glass—I managed to do some nice carving, which lasted for the rest of the trip. Everything was awfully rocky.

One Mile Per Day.
When she steadied down, we had some more head winds, and made one mile in twenty-four hours. This state of affairs elicited some swear words in unison from the crew and passengers. The mate told us gleefully of five-day passages, and the skipper took grim delight in recounting a time when he sailed a vessel a mile within the fortnight, at the Golden Gate, and then had a sou'easter come up, which blew him out to sea for ten days. The crew relished the mill rollers with all the spare rope on board.

During this time, the cook did some marvelous fishing. He caught a fish which he gave an impossible name, a name which was quite as impossible to pronounce as was the fish in muskets. The meat was as tough as a round of beefsteak.

However, he caught a number of dolphins, which were an addition to the cuisine, and were also gamey and great sport to catch. He first hooked them on lines trailed over the stern, and then dragged them to "drawn" them. When "drawn," they were hauled on deck. The discovery of a fish on the line was always the signal for an excitement which was enough to last for two whole days.

Thick weather had the skipper and the mate guessing as to our position. One day, we saw an owl, or what we took to be an owl, as it is different from any of the deep sea birds which had attended us, and had a head very much like the familiar "hoop" bird. A French bark in the same vicinity shortly afterward captured an owl which perched on the yard arm, so our bird might have been a genuine specimen, and not a nature fake after all.

Land Birds Appear.

Then, one thick day, when we were guessing how far from land we were, and who was the President-elect of the United States, and any number of other things, we saw sea gulls—signs that we were near land. During the night, a tiny land bird was blown aboard, and covered with a tarpaulin. The little fellow stayed with us all the way into San Francisco Bay.

Presently, the wind deserted the bark, and she lay for the third time in a calm. She flopped about a good deal, but the sea died more and more. She waddled along at a rate of one to two knots an hour. The presence of sea gulls, and a whale, and a quantity of driftwood and kelp, told us that we were near land, but just how close was mere guesswork. Possibly fifty miles, said the captain.

That night, all hands strained their eyes for any sign of the land. It was thick, and nothing appeared. One schooner passed close into the "Rithet," but there was nothing else. The skipper thought that we should bear up a point further north; the mate advocated a point further south. No one knew just where we were, though we were in the vicinity of the rocks off San Francisco harbor.

Almost on Rocks.

Shortly after midnight, Mr. Keegan, the second mate, saw lights. The mate came on deck later, to find that the vessel was close onto submerged reefs, and the course was changed, though she was barely making steering way.

The next morning, we saw Point Reyes and the Farallones to the north, and ahead of us.

It was still thick. All morning, we flopped near the rocks, until it came clear that we were drifting in closer on them all of the time. The captain grew as restive as a caged bear. With one eye turned toward the breakers on the jagged rocks, he kept the other out for a company tug which might pick up the "Rithet." It almost seemed that he depended upon such a chance for safety.

About nine o'clock, someone spied a smear of smoke on the northern horizon. It was figured out to be a tug, possibly one from the company. Early that morning, the steamer Livine, which belongs to the same firm that operates the "Rithet," was seen to be making port, and it was hoped that she had sighted the helpless "windjammer," and had a tug sent to her relief. However, when the tug had come alongside, it was found that she belonged to the Szeeketa people. Disappointment! Would the captain engage her?

A Desperate Confab.

On the hurricane deck of the tow boat stood her Swedish skipper. "Good morning, Captain Drew," he called.

"Good morning," answered our skipper.

"Taft! Won't you have a tow? You way?"

"Square-riggers are as scarce as hen's teeth now."

"Haven't seen any, then?"

"That's what makes me say what I do."

"Had a nice trip?"

"Rotten! Twenty-one days out."

"Want a tow this morning?"

"No, what we want is to know who was elected president."

Taft Elected.

"Taft! Won't you have a tow? You can't set in today by yourself."

"What do you want?"

"A hundred and ten dollars—you are pretty far out."

"Oh, get out. We don't want you. You want too much money."

Just as we resigned ourselves to our fate, and began to think of another week at sea, the tug captain mentioned that a sou'easter seemed to be blowing inside, and offered to leave it to the two firms to settle the towage bill.

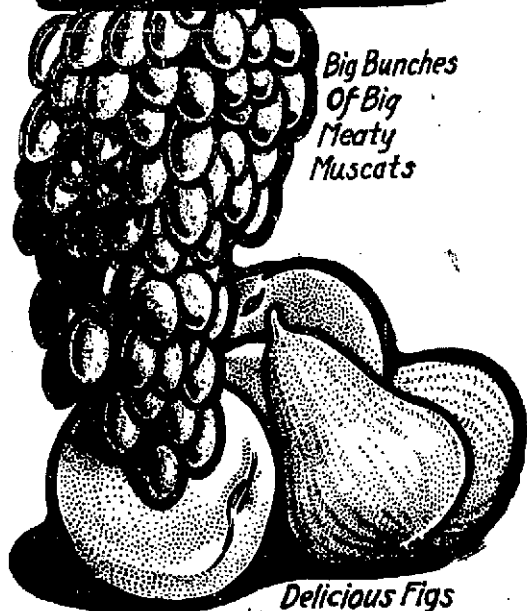

So, the "Rithet" hooked on to us, and we went along merrily at five knots an hour for San Francisco harbor.

Once inside, we found ourselves on a barge, and bundled into the dock at a quarter of eight, almost before we knew it.

From the fact that up almost the whole side by means of a derrick, this part of the Land is the only absolutely safe, altogether gilt edge investment. Because the world's population is rapidly increasing, the demand for land—particularly good farming land—is growing, and for this reason its value is constantly enhancing. Climate and productiveness fix land values.

Land is most valuable where these two elements exist in greatest abundance. For this reason Fresno County farm lands are by far the best investment in the entire country. Fresno County has the most healthful and productive climate, the most fertile soil, the cheapest and most abundant water supply.

Land values are constantly advancing and will continue to advance. The reasons are plain. If you want land the time to buy is NOW, before it goes higher.

In the matter of positive merit no land offering in Fresno County offers greater attractions than QUALITY COLONY. It lies East of Fresno about 12 miles and 2 miles north of Sanger, in one of the best cultivated and most highly productive sections of the County. It is equal to the best muscat land anywhere. It is the same kind in which are planted the biggest raisin producing vineyards in the County. The land is just as good for peaches, other varieties of grapes, as well as various other fruits.

Look at QUALITY COLONY, thoroughly examine the soil, note the splendid appearance of surrounding orchards and vineyards. See everything to it and about it. When you have done this we are confident you will buy, for the closest investigation and comparison will convince you that QUALITY COLONY is the very best raw land value today in Fresno County.

The secret of wealth is wise investment. You have here and now the time and place. Decide today. Invest in QUALITY COLONY and your money will work for you, will increase many fold and will be a guarantee against reverses. Tell us when we can show you QUALITY COLONY.

Sailing Vessels Supplanted.

This was one of those voyages which will no longer be feasible in coming years. The sailing vessel is being rapidly supplanted in the Hawaiian Island trade by large steamers, and soon it will not be easily possible to brave the hardships of the sea in the after cabin of a "windjammer." Life on one of them is essentially monotonous, and essentially rough. But, they alone retain the real fascination of the sea. They are the vessels which yet go below the horizon seaward—always possibly never again to be seen by man; neither they nor their crews. One can put up with the hard fare, the cramped bunks, the lack of all service, the uncertainty, the helplessness when the wind rages and the equal helplessness when a calm sets in or a head wind blows; with rough men and with much hard language; with the lack of modern luxuries, just to know that he is making a real voyage, on a real ship, and that not even the saltiest sailor that sails the brine can boast of a more real trip at sea.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The Interpellation of the chamber of deputies by M. Guernier regarding the "separatist" movement that has manifested itself at St. Pierre, Miquelon, was postponed to-day at the request of M. Milleux La Croix, the colonial minister.

In an interview, M. Guernier says that the troubles at St. Pierre constitute a movement for separation from France under the guise of religious agitation. The people are contracting their economic situation with that of their neighbors and they believe they would be better off under Great Britain or the United States.
